You know more about the horror of civil war, and the coming horror of airplane warfare, looking at an Associated Press picture of the Madrid morgue, ninety-five dead bodies freshly laid out after bombing planes had flown over the city. How many would have been in that morgue had poison gas been dropped with the bombs?

The President reports that he spent $670 for his re-election, $20 for postage, $150 went to the town committee at Hyde Park, where he lives, $500 to the Democratic committee of his county. Nobody contributed anything to him.

Considering the result, the $670 seems to have been spent judiciously, 46 of the 48 states carried, for less than $15 per state.

What will President Roosevelt say to the Argentine gathering. He might remind our neighbors that no ocean separates us; good concrete roads will soon unite our Canadian border with the tip end of South America; neighbors all interested in the same big hemisphere should deal with each other.

Those who believe that the President is thinking only of peace and high spirituality do not know his practical side. He will also talk "business."

Hitler and Japan plan war against Communists, while Mussolini looks on interested. Berlin and Tokio explain that it has nothing to do with Russia, but Russia says frankly and intelligently, "I don't believe you."

Japan and Germany, conveniently located to attack Russia from the east and the west, would perhaps learn a good deal if they made the attack.

Russia today, with more than a million well armed soldiers, and one of the world's biggest air and submarine fleets, is not the Russia of feeble Czarist days that Japan overcame so easily.

England, with important real estate all over the world, asks Japan, please, what does the new pact mean exactly, suspecting an Italian-Japanese-German combination against Russia.

Charles M. Schwab used to watch a little dog chasing his express train, and wonder what the dog planned to do with the train if he got it. You might wonder what the Japanese-German pact plans to do with Russia, if it should get it.

Two young female geniuses, Misses Fanny Hurst and Agnes Repplier, disagree about book writing. Agnes Repplier says it is "perilously easy"; Fanny Hurst says, no, it is hard.

Publishers say all depends on the kind of books you write, and the brain you have.

What was perhaps "perilously easy" for Shakespeare, is impossible for anybody else. Dante advised "work as nature works in fire," which means that you must burn as you write; which is not "perilously" pleasant.

It took Montesquieu thirty years to write his admirable "Spirit of Laws." He asks readers to remember that.

In a few weeks he wrote his amusing "Persian Letters." Among his contemporaries, probably 1000 read the witty, unimportant "Persian Letters" for one that reads "The Spirit of Laws," one of the world's great books.

Young Racine wrote to Boileau, who had complimented him: "I ought to tell you that I write with great facility." Boileau replied: "I hope to teach you to write with great difficulty."

Schumann-Heink, artist of the operatic stage, and a fine example to all women, is dead at 75.

Young ladies who say, "I can't have children, because I must have a career," and sometimes have neither, please observe that Mme. Schumann-Heink had a magnificent artistic career, and many children also, including two boys killed in the big war, and one on a submarine, who survived.

Schumann-Heink worked from early girlhood until her death, and she worked while her children were on the way.

A combination of career and children is possible; young ladies who doubt it should select the children. They last, careers are forgotten.

These are money distributing days, with dividend disbursements of more than five hundred million dollars, wage and salary increases for 1,200,000 men, amounting to a hundred and twenty-five million dollars a year, already on the way, and one thousand millions total disbursements probable before the end of the year.

The way to diminish unemployment is to increase distribution, by increasing public buying power. These disbursements will do that.

'ALWAYS LOVED FAY,' SAYS RUDY VALLEE

FAY WEBB

Learned on Deathbed Crooner Still Loved Her

Santa Monica, Cal., Nov. 19 (INS)—Fay Webb, the dark-eyed girl who learned on her death bed that Rudy Vallee, famous radio crooner, still loved her even though they were divorced, lay in a funeral parlor today, a victim of peritonitis following an operation.

Death came quietly to the beautiful actress last night, after a valiant fight for the life she loved so well despite its disappointments.

Miss Webb was in a coma as she died. The major operation was performed Friday and peritonitis set in three days later. For many hours she was in an oxygen tent and several blood transfusions were made but her weakened heart failed to rally.

With Miss Webb at the end was her father, Capt. C. E. Webb, former Santa Monica police chief.

DAD PRAISES RUDY

Vallee, said Webb, wanted to fly to Santa Monica from New York when informed of his former wife's condition and was in constant touch with all developments of the fatal illness.

"But there was nothing he could do," said Webb. "He wanted to be helpful. He's that kind of a man. The past is all forgotten."

Webb referred to his daughter's court battles with Vallee last year, during which Webb first tried unsuccessfully to effect a reconciliation between them and then sided with his daughter.

'I've Always Loved Her,' Says Rudy

New York, Nov. 19 (INS)—"I still love her—I've always loved her."

So said the heart-broken Rudy Vallee today as he tried to hide his grief over the death of his divorced wife, Fay Webb Vallee, in Santa Monica, Cal.

"Several times I asked her to come back to me—but she refused," said Vallee.

He and Fay were divorced last May. They had married in 1931.

When Rudy heard the news of her death last night he wept. He was so overcome he could not give his usual performance at a night club.

Vallee would have flown to Santa Monica when her condition became grave had he not had a prior broadcasting engagement. He planned to rehearse for this engagement this afternoon.

Chatham Fire Hits 5 Summer Homes

Chatham, Nov. 19—Flames swept the exclusive summer colony overlooking Pleasant Bay today causing damage to five homes owned by Greater Bostonians that is estimated at nearly $50,000.

The summer place of Wallace B. Donham, dean of the Harvard school of business administration, suffered the worst. Fire officials said damage to this home would amount to about $35,000.

An adjacent home, that of Harry M. Stearns of Cambridge, was fired by flying brands and damaged to the extent of $10,000.

Roofs of three other dwellings, owned by Edward L. Hurd of Milton, Frederick M. Loveland of Newton and Richard Donham, son of the Harvard dean, were also burned.

DUCE SPEEDS UP ARMS; BRITISH ACT IN CRISIS

LINK KILLING TO GAMBLING HOLDUPS

An amazing series of holdups of number pool operators, race-track rooms and handbook men, in Boston, will be revealed, it was learned today, as a result of decision to conduct a grand jury investigation of the election night murder of William R. Sullivan.

District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing of Norfolk County will present evidence in the slaying of Sullivan to the grand jurors next month, it was announced.

The murder of Sullivan, who was found dying just over the Boston line in Brookline, was set down by Boston authorities as a case of mistaken identity, but to track down the slayers the authorities must delve into a lurid background enveloping the killer gang.

FIGHT CRIME WAVE

This background constitutes one of the most spectacular chapters in Boston's crime annals.

One of the most amazing features of it is that, the holdups being entirely conducted against individuals and groups connected with illicit enterprises, no official record of the robberies exists. No reports have been made to police by the victims.

The police, however, are aware of the robberies. The possibility of complete exposure of the situation, by Norfolk County inquiry, is believed to be the cause of the sudden and secret formation yesterday of a police machine-gun squad.

U. S. AIDS PROBE

The order has gone out to prevent continuance of this extraordinary crime wave. Whether this means smashing bookie joints and number pool headquarters remains a mystery, but the whole illicit gambling business is in a shaky condition, and the operators are fearful of results.

At least one of the holdups oc-

25 Girls Trapped in Atlanta Fire

Atlanta, Nov. 19 (INS)—Trapping an unknown number of music students on the third and fourth floors, fire raged through the Cable Piano Company's building in downtown Atlanta this afternoon.

At least 25 students were believed to have been on the floors occupied by the Atlanta Conservatory of Music when fire broke out shortly after noon.

GOVERNOR IS KEPT IN BED BY DOCTOR

The meeting of the executive council at which a public hearing had been scheduled to fight out the matter of ousting Dr. Winfred Overholser as state commissioner of mental diseases was called off today.

Governor Curley was ordered by his physician, Dr. Martin English, not to leave his bed under any circumstances. That order put an end to the projected meeting.

Whether the hearing can be held next week on the council's regular meeting day is still a conjecture.

It was learned that the influenza infection which sent the governor to bed four weeks ago—at the height of the campaign for the Senate—had now spread down

Today was the coldest November 19 in the history of the Boston Weather Bureau. The mercury dropped to 14 degrees at 5 a. m. and was the same at 6 a. m.

Coldest place in New England was Greenville, Me., with four above zero.

The extraordinary spell for this time of year throughout New England resulted in predictions of a severe winter.

Numerous ponds in eastern Massachusetts were frozen over, the temperature was 12 degrees below zero on Mt. Washington, Portland had its coldest Nov. 19 in history and Maine rivers froze over earlier than old-timers could recall.

Rescues on the Great Lakes, ships in peril on the North Atlantic, delayed liners, all figured in the exceptional weather conditions, as residents of Greater Boston shivered in temperatures of 10 degrees and lower.

Lowell reported the lowest temperature for this date in the last half-century. The mercury dropped

P. O. Wrecked; Dead in Piles

Madrid, Nov. 19 (AP)—A Fascist bomb fell at the main entrance of the Madrid general postoffice today, killing many employes and partly wrecking the building.

All service was instantly suspended.

Shrapnel sprayed the structure, striking a number of persons. The bomb fell shortly after 5 p. m.

It was the newest attack in the relentless aerial "punishment" which has spread untold death and damage through Madrid.

90 KILLED EARLIER

Explosion earlier today of at least a score of huge bombs claimed a toll estimated as high as 90 dead an' 200 injured.

But defense authorities, declaring the victims of two weeks of intense bombing and shelling had reached "thousands," said the real toll may never be known, since dozens were buried deep under charred and smoking wreckage.

They declared "many" refugees of Tuesday's bombardment, huddled in the Puerto del Sol subway station, in the heart of Madrid, had been asphyxiated when one bomb blocked the Carmen street entrance and another, landing at the Alcala street end of the platform, filled the station with dense acrid fumes.

GHASTLY DEVASTATION

The projectile was not a gas bomb, however, the officials asserted.

A squadron of insurgent bombers, appearing over the city early this morning, spilled most of their bombs in the vicinity of the tele-

Italy Orders Bigger Army

By FRANK GERVASI

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Rome, Nov. 19—Preparing for all eventualities should hostilities develop from Italian and German recognition of General Francisco Franco's insurgent government in Spain, the Fascist grand council today approved sweeping "acceleration" of Italian armaments.

At a momentous meeting of the council, which Premier Mussolini harangued for two hours, the chiefs of the Italian state announced:

"Having heard and approved the data furnished by Il Duce concerning the military preparations of the nation, the council maintains:

"In this particular moment the nation must accelerate its preparedness—above all in the fields of the air and sea."

At the same time, recognition of Franco became an actuality with appointment of Nobile Filippo de

BRITAIN THREATENS TO SMASH BLOCKADE IN SPAIN

EDEN TAKES SLAP AT RUSSIA FOR NEWEST WAR CRISIS

London, Nov. 19 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden threw the House of Commons into brief tumult today by declaring "some other governments" were more to blame for Spanish intervention than Italy and Germany.

Members said they presumed he referred especially to Soviet Russia.

Eden's statement came after authoritative sources had thrown out strong hints Great Britain would not tolerate any "foolishness" from Spanish insurgent which might interfere with British Mediterranean shipping. The hints referred to General Francisco Franco's threat to blockade Barcelona, Mediterranean port held by British government supporters.

The foreign secretary was asked if he would get specific assurances "from Germany and Italy that their recognition of the insurgent regime did not mean they were gaoing to hold themselves free to supply arms to France.'

He replied:

"Certainly. Our whole object is to see that non-intervention works. For that purpose we look for the co-operation of all governments, irrespective of the particular ideologies they may pursue."

British Order For Shells To Canada

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 19 (AP)—Receipt of an order for shells from the British government by the National Steel Car Company was announced today by R. S. Hart, vice-president of the company.

"It is jjust a small arder to enable us to get ready—to get 'tooled up'," Hart said.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, in the British House of Commons last week said he "hoped very much that steps may be taken in Canada" to help out the mother country in the manufacture of war materials.

British Fleet May Go To Smash Spain Blockade

London, Nov. 19 (INS)—Adopting a stand diametrically opposed to that of Germany and Italy, Great Britain today announced its refusal to recognize General Francisco Franco's right to blockade the port of Barcelona.

Coming on the heels of Italian and German recognition of the Franco government, the British action served to accentuate gravity of the international situation precipitated by the sharp cleavage between Fascist and Communist camps in Europe.

Britain, it was learned late today, is considering possibility of recognizing General Franco as a belligerent in order to obtain neutral zones in Spanish ports to accommodate British shipping.

Britain has already officially "deplored" the "hasty" action of Rome and Berlin in extending recognition, but obviously fears even worse repercussions should Franco proceed with his blockade plans

Dispatches reaching here from Lisbon said this step was planned because Franco holds there exists in Barcelona "a notorious traffic in arms, ammunition, tanks, airplanes and poison gas."

BRITAIN MAY SEND FLEET

Russian and Spanish vessels, often flying the flags of other countries, are carrying on this traffic, according to the Portuguese government.

At present, Britain is attempting to determine whether Franco intends to make the blockade effective, a necessary requirement of international law. Should Franco defy Britain's refusal to recognize the blockade, it was considered likely British warships would be sent to Barcelona to reinforce protection already accorded British merchant ships.

The German and Italian consuls are quitting Barcelona, and preparations are under way to evacuate all Italian nationals.

Britain plans to summon the international non-intervention subcommittee to meet on Monday to hasten establishment of an international control commission over Spanish ports.

Soviet Refuses to Join Arms Race to Spain

Moscow, Nov. 19 (AP)—Soviet Russian participation in an arms race with the Fascist neighbors of Spain is "hardly possible," an authoritative source said today.

The Soviet Union, this source said, does not intend to change its policy toward Spain because Italy and Germany have recognized the insurgent belligerents in the civil war there.

"Such recognition should not necessarily break up the international neutrality committee, which is beginning to show signs of life," one official told the Associated Press.

Ttaly, Germany, Japan May Reveal New Pact

By PIERRE J. HUSS

(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service)

Berlin, Nov. 19—A far-reaching agreement binding Germany, Italy and Japan in a united front against Communism embracing Europe and the Far East may be revealed here shortly, International News Service learned today.

Recent dispatches from Shanghai told of a purported military alliance between Germany and Japan, admittedly directed against the Soviet Union.

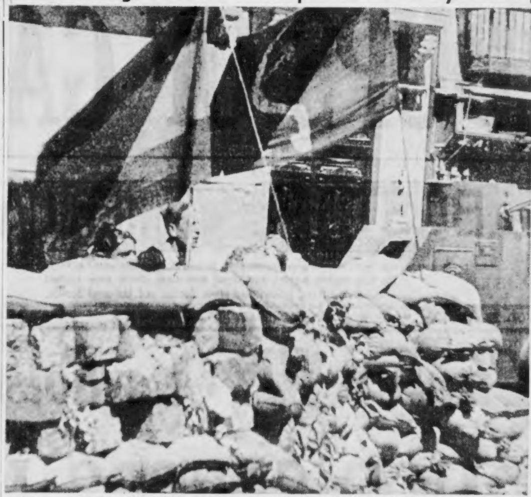
Existence of, or at least negotiation for, such a pact is expected to be disclosed officially, as well as a hitherto unsuspected agreement aligning the rightist nations of Europe and the Far East against the forces of Communism.

Official quarters maintained a tight-lipped silence, but usually authoritative sources intimated some announcement of great importance may be forthcoming within the next few days.

From the few available intimations regarding the situation, it is believed the agreement is not specific in its details, but rather a general declaration against Communism.

Extension of German-Manchukuoan trade may also be involved, with the military angle involved through exchange of Japanese raw materials for German machinery, arms and ammunition.

Red Flag Waves in Spain's Bloody War



The Communist flag, with sickle and hammer, as this picture indicates, holds a prominent position in Spain's bloody civil war. It flies proudly atop a sandbag barricade with that of Spain. Behind the barricade are members of the government troops, crouched and waiting for the next attack by the rebels. The picture was taken in a principal thoroughfare of Madrid, which is reported crumbling under relentless attacks of the insurgent army.

PARIS WARSHIPS TO GO TO SPAIN

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP)—France has decided to maintain a cruiser and a destroyer off Barcelona in the face of a Spanish insurgent threat to blockade the port, sources close to the government said today.

Representatives of the foreign and naval ministeries decided to station the cruiser Dupleix and the destroyer Albatross in Catalan waters to protect French rights.

There are no French merchant ships at Barcelona at present, however.

Air Bombs Kill 90 More In Madrid; Dead in Ruins

phone building, nerve center of Madrid's communication with the outside world. However, the building was not hit.

In the early morning sunlight Madrid's broad Gran Via was a scene of ghastly devastation.

The pavement was covered with broken glass and splintered wood and stone.

Most of the windows on the Fuencarral side of the telephone building were broken by a blast which wrecked a nearby structure. This building still smouldered.

With the window panes blasted out, curtains of Gran Via store windows flapped in the crisp breeze.

In Conde de Penalver avenue, the front of a store formerly owned by an American company was torn out. Two automobiles parked before the building were wrecked.

Many buildings in Carmen and Preciados streets were destroyed.

The early morning raid alarmed the various embassies in the Castella section. From the American embassy, the roar of the bombers could be heard distinctly as the insurgent squadron passed and repassed over the building en route to the point where they dropped their bombs, less than a mile away.

Many Americans abandoned their beds and groped their way through the darkness to the cellars of the embassy.

CHILDREN AT PLAY

There they listened to the booming bombs and the roar of rifle and machine gun fire from the University City section to the northwest, invaded early in the week by Fascist shock troops.

However, despite the repeated raids, much of Madrid's frightened population followed their usual occupations this morning.

Lines stood outside stores, the women of Madrid refusing to abandon their places—airplanes or no airplanes.

Children scurried about at play, ducking into nearby houses only when the drone of the planes became too loud.

At least four houses in the center of the city were tumbled to the ground in the morning raid.

It was believed many persons were dead and wounded under the piles of debris.

A projectile, falling on No. 8 Penalver avenue, injured several persons and made splinters of furniture and windows.

Several men and children lost their lives when the bomb struck the building at 9 Fuencarral street, a few yards away from the telephone building.

FLEE NEW BOMBING

The plant of the newspaper El Liberal was destroyed by still another bomb.

The Associated Press correspondent was approaching the telephone building to transmit this story when a burst of anti-aircraft and machine-gun fire warned the city that insurgent planes again were overhead to view their earlier work of destruction.

Pedestrians dashed through the broken windows in Penalver street and sought the shelter of nearby houses.

However, the planes circled idly, making no attempt to repeat the earlier bombardment.

Smoke still drifted from the rooftops of houses burned two nights ago while crackling rifles and machine guns from the Manzanares River and University City mingled with the explosions of the government anti-aircraft guns.

A further check showed that the San Sebastian church, where the ashes of the Spanish playwright, Lopez Davega, supposedly were kept, was completely destroyed.

Firemen, scarcely rested from their work following the Tuesday bombardment, again were pulling bodies from the wreckage.

Duce Plans Dictator In Spain; Prepares

In diplomatic quarters it was learned that Mussolini and Hitler will encourage the promotion of a new Fascist country in Spain, with General Francisco Franco becoming the dictator.

Mussoloini reviewed the whole international crisis, which statesmen throughout Europe feared might develop into an immediate threat against the peace of the world if the present breach between Fascist and Communist countries should widen.

And in thundering phrases he was reported to have stressed Italy's achievements of recent years in building a new Roman Empire and to have demanded continuation of the forward march no matter what the opposition.

The dictator's son-in-law, Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, talked for an hour and a half concerning his conferences with government leaders in Berlin, Vienna and Budapest, which resulted in formation of a Fascist bloc openly recognizing the Franco government.

Severance of diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia was admittedly a possibility in Rome today, but Italian officials said the Mussolini government would not take the initiative in such action.

In reliable quarters it was stated that henceforth Italy will consider the Spanish non-intervention pact of 27 European nations void and will feel free to ship arms and other aid openly to the insurgents.

Officially, however, it was merely stated Italy is retaining "liberty of action" concerning supply of arms to Franco.

But most political observers saw the Hitler-Mussolini action as part of a definite plan to scuttle the non-intervention accord.

The announcement made simultaneously in Rome and Berlin by official communiques indicated the closeness of the world's two foremost dictators—Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler—and their apparent determination to encourage the formation of a new Fascist state in Spain under the dictatorship of General Franco.

The official Italian communique, so similar to the German announcement that they were quite evidently drafted in collaboration, follows:

"Now that the Franco government has taken possession of the greater part of Spain and development of the situation there makes it continually more evident that in the remaining part of Spain it is impossible of a responsible government exercising power, the Fascist government decided to recognize the government of General Franco and send him a charge d'affaires to open diplomatic relations. The charge will leave immediately. The present diplomatic representative has been recalled."

FLEET IN "ALARM"

Concerted action of Italy and Germany in recognizing the Franco government, with Austria and Hungary trailing along in their footsteps, followed closely the diplomatic visits to Berlin of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law and Italy's Foreign Minister.

It was also recalled that within the past few days Ramon Franco, transatlantic flier and brother of Francisco Franco, has visited Italy on a mision the nature of which he declined to divulge.

The Italian fleet in the Mediterranean has been held in a "state of alarm" for several weeks and was believed today to be ready to steam at a moment's notice into position to effect a blockade of the Catalonian coast against import of Russian arms, should Mussolini decide on such drastic action.

VATICAN'S VIEW ON SPAIN PACT

Vatican City, Italy, Nov. 19 (AP)—Italian and German recognition of the Fascist-Insurgent government in Spain "cannot but have considerable international repercussions," the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano declared today.

In a front-page editorial, the newspaper said the repercussions would be felt "above all with regard to the committee of non-intervention." It continued:

"Although juridically the passage of recognition fr omone government to recognition of another does not change the aspect of non-intervention, nevertheless the political aspect is sensibly changed, especially taking into account the atmosphere of conflict in which the London meetings have taken place up to this time."

Farley Has Hour With De Valera

Dublin, Nov. 19 (INS)—James A. Farley United States postmaster general, today had an hour's conversation with President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State.

"I found Mr. De Valera a charming man," said Farley. "We discussed the relations between our two countries. I think the tlk will prove useful."

Alvin M. Owsley, American minister, introduced Farley to De Valera.

M'CARL AGAIN ASSAILS U. S. SPENDING

Unless the United States puts the brakes on public spending, the American people face a reduced standard of living that will for them be "a new low level," nearly 1000 business men at the 12th annual conference of the New England Council were warned today.

The speaker was former Comptroller-General John R. McCarl, who served for 15 years as "Watchdog of the Treasury," and resigned last June to campaign for economy in government expenditures.

He asserted that the overwhelming re-election of President Roosevelt was not an overwhelming endorsement of his policies, but that the vote "determined only the question of leadership."

BLAMES HOOVER

Listening to McCarl were governors of the New England states—except Governor Curley, who is ill—members of the New England Council and business leaders in all the principal industries of this section.

Governor-Elect Charles F. Hurley replaced Governor Curley on the afternoon program.

The speaker blamed the Hoover administration for the first move towards making the federal government take over the problems of towns, cities, counties and states.

"The Federal Government was helping in 1929," he said, "but the load was heavy. It demanded real sportsmanship and we faltered.

"Here was the beginning of our dumping—dumping our load into the lap of the government. In a hope of finding an easy way out, the Federal Goverment was induced, under the Hoover administration, to so expand its part that our revenues were soon depleted and our public debt substantially increased."

PROBLEMS UNSOLVED

The former comptroller-general said that the November 3 election had solved none of the country's problems.

"Unfortunately, despite the spending," he asserted, "we are not out of the woods. Agriculture, unemployment and relief have not been solved.

"Our national debt will go to at least $35,000,000 before anything can be done about it. There will be required approximately about a billion a year just for interest.

"If there should occur some new catastrophe, some horrible event requiring us to raise large amounts of money quickly, what would we do?"

HE'S STILL POPULAR

Survey in Provinces

A survey of public opinion throughout Britain's far-flung empire, conducted by correspondents for Universal Service, is presented herewith in connection with King Edward VIII's prospective marriage to Mrs. Wallis Simpson. It indicates the royal romance of king and commoner will not adversely affect Edward's tremendous popularity in the British Dominions or meet with any serious opposition on their part.

Following is a series of authoritative dispatches from the principal dominions of the British Empire:

CANADA

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 19—To understand the attitude of Canada and Canadians toward the romance of King Edward VIII with Mrs Wallis Simpson, it is necessary to bear in mind that probably the outstanding Canadian national characteristic is an almost fierce loyalty to the British crown.

Whatever King Edward VIII chooses to do in his personal relations even to the point of marriage, his decision will be accepted by Canadians without question.

It may be said that while the Canadian newspapers, unlike those of the United Kingdom, have not hesitated to publish the news of King Edward VIII and Mrs. Simpson's friendship, generally the story has been handled in widely different form from its treatment in the American press.

Speaking generally, Canada's population as a whole embraces more religious, church-going people than any other country of Anglo-Saxondom.

Among the strictly religious to whom divorce is anathema, the treatment in the American newspapers and magazines of Mrs. Simpson's marital affairs, coupling her name with the King's, has been extremely painful.

In Canada, because of the reserve maintained by the press, the public at large has not been fully impressed as yet by the possibility of King Edward's marrying Mrs. Simpson.

If he does however, such a marriage would be accepted by the King's Canadian subjects with good grace and acclaim—and that applies to the population as a whole.

NEW ZEALAND

Auckland, New Zealand, Nov. 19 (US)—King Edward VIII's friendship with Mrs. Wallis Simpson has been the subject of frequent comment in recent months and has occupied considerable space in some of the papers.

King Edward's plans to marry Mrs. Simpson will meet with no official opposition in this dominion. The tendency here is to look upon the King as a man as much as a monarch and to accord him complete liberty in the choice of a wife.

SOUTH AFRICA

Special Dispatch to Universal Service

Johannesburg, South Africa, Nov. 19—While admitting that King Edward VIII's prospective marriage with Mrs. Wallis Simpson would shatter long-standing British traditions, the view in South Africa is that such a marriage would prove quite popular.

South Africa is intensely interested in the royal romance and every detail is being read avidly in the press.

The general opinion of the man on the street and officialdom is that it is a matter of the King's own business and unlikely to affect in any way the high esteem with which the King is held.

AUSTRALIA

Special Dispatch to Universal Service

Sidney, Australia, Nov. 19—Only the most guarded references have been made in the press here to King Edward VIII's friendship for Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Mrs. Simpson's divorce produced very little press comment and was handled as reservedly as it was by the London newspapers.

The press however has severely criticized the American Press for what it terms "invasion" of the King's private life. Some of the American press reports were branded as "fantastic and unbridled speculations."

IRELAND

Special Dispatch to Universal Service

Dublin, Irish Free State, Nov. 19 (US)—The Irish people generally are quite unaware of Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

The newspapers have published nothing about the royal romance and only one paper went so far as to mention the divorce decree granted Mrs. Simpson recently. The latter mention made no reference whatever to the King or his friendship with Mrs. Simpson.

King Edward VIII's marriage to Mrs. Simpson would probably leave the Irish Free State unmoved politically.

WELSH JOBLESS ASK HELP OF EDWARD

Cwmbran, Wales, Nov. 19 (AP)—An open letter from Welsh jobless, asking: "Will an impoverished people be able to joyfully celebrate Your Majesty's coronation?" was given to King Edward of England today.

The letter, first handed to one of the King's aides in Cwmbran before the start of his second day tour of the bleak Wales mining districts, came to Edward's personal attention when, after luncheon, the chairman of the Blaenavon town council told him about it.

"Where is it?" the King demanded. "I want to see it."

The chairman handed Edward a copy. He read it and stuffed it in his pocket.

The letter appealed for a "higher living standard, work and wages" for "thousands of willing hands so eagerly waiting."

Inspecting headquarters of the committee for the jobless at Blaenavon, the King promised an attempt to ease unemployment.

Turning to the chairman of the committee, he said:

"Something will be done about unemployment."

At Pontypool Junior Instruction Center, the monarch joked about the fact that the girls' and boys' departments were separated.

Noting that the boys' carpentry shops were separated from a large adjoining room, where the girls were being taught domestic science, he remarked:

"Oh, I see you want to keep their minds on their work."

Wally's Friend Sails

London Bound

New York, Nov. 19 (INS)—Despite insistent rumors among her friends to the contrary, Mrs. Jacques A. L. Raffray, wife of a New York insurance broker and close friend of Mrs. Wallis Simpson, declared in a written statement as she sailed for England early today that she will not marry Ernest Simpson.

Acknowledging that her name had been linked with that of Simpson, whose wife recently won a decree nisi in England, Mrs. Raffray, through her attorney, issued the following statement aboard the steamship Hamburg:

"Mrs. Raffray is sailing to spend the winter in London. She was a house guest of Mrs. Wallis Simpson last Spring and summer, and returned to New York in September.

"In order to achieve quiet and avoid publicity, she has been living incognito in New York for the last few weeks. She has an apartment in London for the winter.

"Mrs. Raffray does not know how long she will remain in that country.

"Press reports had linked Mrs. Raffray with Mr. Ernest Simpson, but Mrs. Raffray wished to point out that she and Mr. Raffray are not divorced, although they have maintained separate residences in New York for the last year."

MRS. MARY RAFFRAY ON LINER HAMBURG

Mrs. Raffray's friends, who gathered here at a party in her honor before she sailed, insisted, however, that she will marry Simpson, but not until after the coronation of King Edward. They also declared that she was already divorced from her husband, who was himself present at the farewell party.

BASKET DRIVE NEEDS HELP

By THE CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND EDITOR

"I'm not working," she told us—this middle-aged woman from Roxbury who came into the office today.

"I'm not working and money is a hard thing for me to get this year. But I still have plenty to eat, thank God.

"I want you to take this $5 and put it towards your Christmas Basket Fund. It'll help some poor family. Some people who have even less than I."

You know, it was rather hard to take that $5 bill, but one look at the donor was enough for anyone to understand that giving meant so much happiness to her that it would have been heartless to protest.

She said we could just put down the initials "M. G." and that would be enough.

SOLVE PROBLEMS

So the Christmas Basket Fund Editor, who is rather used to having a lump in his throat, after reading hundreds of pleading letters, just swallowed hard again and sat for a few minutes thinking how all kinds of people make up this world, but what a big percentage of them are good and kind people.

If only everyone who reads about "M. G." would take time out to send a little something NOW, what a big help it would be.

It would answer a lot of problems like this:

"I am writing to you for a Christmas basket," a Cambridge mother says. "I have seven children and my husband is a cripple.

"My youngest baby is being examined to see why she doesn't grow, but I guess the reason is that I cannot afford to give her the proper food.

"My husband goes from door to door peddling pencils and other little knick-knacks. Sometimes he makes a dollar a day and we use it to buy food.

"I make two dollars and a half and I have to try my best to pay the rent. I haven't any relatives.

"My children never have milk to drink, but please, sir, do all you can so that they may have a happy Christmas."

There's more to that letter. But isn't that enough?

There are still 36 days to Christmas, but ten times that number wouldn't begin to be enough for all the worthwhile work that has to be done.

Just don't wait. That's all the Christmas Basket Fund Editor wants to ask you today.

Send SOMETHING now to the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser Basket Fund. Send something else later if you can, but send SOMETHING NOW.

The Basket Fund office telephone is LIBerty 0766, in case you want to know.

Remember, that while it is the purpose of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser that Christmas baskets shall go only to deserving and needy families, no one is barred from applying.

APPLICANTS APPROVED

It is a requirement, however, that all applications must be approved. That is to say; a priest, a minister, a rabbi or a charitable organization must certify to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor that the applicant is needy and without prospect of receiving a Christmas basket from other sources.

The Christmas Basket Fund headquarters are located at 234 Devonshire street, Boston, a few doors from Franklin street. All donations should be mailed to Christmas Basket Fund, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

Brrr! Turn on the Heat!

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

"Please, Mr. Weatherman," plead Elizabeth Shanley, left, and Ruth Burns, "turn on the heat!" All right for motorists who can ride in a nice, warm sedan, but it's no fun riding in a rumble seat with the mercury hovering around the zero mark. Of course, a warm blanket to put over your head helps some, but even then Jack Frost has a way of getting in.

SEVERE WINTER FORECAST

to 11 above there. But in other places it was lower.

Lexington reported 10 degrees, Concord 11 and Arlington 12. Concord has not had a colder November day in three years.

Exposed places in all the suburbs north of Boston reported lower figures, but these were not considered a fair reflection of conditions.

Eighteen-inch drifts blocked some of the roads in Aroostook county, Me., while the St. John river was frozen from St. Anne to Grand Falls, a distance of 20 miles. This was the earliest freezing ever recorded in that section.

Robert M. Dole, Portland meteorologist, was among those who predicted a very severe winter.

Portland's 12 degrees above zero at 4 a. m. was the lowest November 19 figure ever recorded. The suburbs reported readings as low as 4 degrees.

SCHOOLS HAMPERED

Difficulty in heating several schools caused cancellation of some classes today. The Dexter School on Freeman street, Brookline, was closed, due to trouble with the heating plant. Classes will be resumed tomorrow.

Newburyport reported one of the lowest thermometer readings in this section. The figure was 6 above zero. Gloucester reported 8 above zero.

Other marks were: Beverly 11; Dedham 12; Marblehead 10; Topsfield 10; Wellesley 10; Andover 10; Waltham 10; Haverhill 10; Marlboro 10; Taunton 10; Methuen 10; Northampton 8; Woburn 12; Augusta, Me., 10; Bangor, Me., 10.

Mrs. Simpson In Royal Box At Opera

(Copyright 1936 by International News Service)

London, Nov. 19—Seated in the royal box, Mrs. Wallis Simpson attended the opera at Covent Garden last night, it was learned today.

Mrs. Simpson was a member of a large party, with Lady Cunard as hostess.

Other guests included Lady Diana Cooper and the master of Semphill.

Mrs. Simpson's name was not listed at her own request. She sat in the rear of the box, wearing an evening gown of black velvet and an ermine wrap.

Around her neck was a diamond necklace and she wore diamond clips on her gown, differing from the emerald clips she usually wears.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, a second cousin of King Edward, sat in another box nearby. He had as his guest the Duke of Northumberland and Sir Alfred and Lady Webb-Johnson.

His Error

Old Rag, Va., Nov. 19 (AP)—When Philip Smith goes out on a limb to reach for a raccoon again, caution will be his watchword.

With a companion he followed their 'coon dogs until the animals "treed" near Shenandoah National Park.

Smith climbed the tree, grabbed the "'coon" and a three-foot wildcat swung into action. Hunter and wildcat hit the ground at the same time. The two men clubbed the wildcat to death. A doctor treated Smith for lacerations of the face.

Ex-Mrs. Vallee Dies; Her Father Praises Rudy

ame critical several days ago when peritonitis developed to complicate the ailments. Physicians said that another last-minute blood transfusion might have helped, but they added that had it failed, the shock probably might have meant instant death.

The former wife of the radio crooner, Vallee, might never have made the headlines had fate not decreed that she should meet him, and that he should fall in love with her.

She began to fail in health shortly after their separation in 1933 and their later divorce.

Shortly before Miss Webb died, word came from New York that Vallee was preparing to rush to the side of his former wife. He had said:

"If there is anything I can do to help."

He was reported to have said that he still loved, and always had loved, Fay.

Her father had said when he heard this, that he was not surprised at Vallee's attitude.

Romance, the glamour of the film world, then disillusionment and sorrow crowded the few years of fame that came to Fay Webb.

A slight, sloe-eyed beauty, she entered screen work in Hollywood soon after she was graduated from Santa Monica high school in her native town, in California, seven years ago.

Just a few miles away from Santa Monica is Hollywood. Fay, aided by the local renown she acquired through amateur theatricals, seemed launched on a successful career.

SAW FAY'S PHOTO

In New York, Rudy Vallee, already a famous, wealthy orchestra leader, noticed a photograph of Fay in a magazine. The face haunted him. He remembered later that year—1929—when he went to Hollywood to make a picture to ask for Fay Webb. They were introduced.

To interviewers he spoke of his "dream girl."

On July 6 1931 they were married secretly in East Orange N. J. Three days later the marriage was made public. Theirs was an undying love the bride and bridegroom announced.

A few weeks later Fay went to the West Coast, complaining her health was bad. She needed the California air she said.

Then in August 1932 after the public had been assured several times there was nothing to rumors they were about to part Fay left for Reno saying she was about to sue for divorce.

But she hastened back to New York. There had been a reconciliation, people were told.

DIVORCE FOR FAY

On April 4, 1933, however, there was another separation after Fay's father, then Santa Monica police chief, made a hurried trip to New York in a vain effort to smooth out the Vallees' marital difficulties.

Last May Fay won a divorce on the West Coast.

During their less than two years of married life, Miss Webb accompanied her husband on his tours about the country, with interruptions for visits with her family.

Soon after the separation there began litigation in both Los Angeles and New York that was as protracted as it was bitter.

In her suit for separate maintenance in New York in 1934 and 1935, Miss Webb set the maintenance needs at $7450 a month, listing such items as $100 each for butler, cook, chauffeur and maid; $1000 for upkeep of her home; $1000 for recreation and travel; $1000 for food and entertainment; $1000 for medical and dental attention; $2000 for clothes and accessories; $125 for beauty treatments and cosmetics.

GRANTED $100 PER WEEK

Under the final decree, she was granted $100 a week.

Of her marriage, the dark beauty said at various times:

"The experience was educating. I have no ill feeling about Rudy.

"Our temperaments clashed—He's wonderful, but we just couldn't get along."

During the last two years she had been in ill health. The death of her mother early this year came as a great shock. Friends said she grieved inconsolably.

BIG YULE TRADE BOOM FORECAST FOR BOSTON

The biggest Christmas retail business boom since 1929, with Greater Boston leading the nation in buying increase, was forecast today as retail sales reports from all over the country showed a minimum improvement of 15 per cent over last year.

Greater Boston stores will do nearer 20 per cent than 15 per cent more business this Christmas season than they did last year, according to P. A. O'Connell, president of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Pointing to increased public confidence, resulting from pay raises throughout New England and dividend bonuses from large corporations, O'Connell said the main problem here is to secure deliveries of the mass of merchandise people are anxious to buy.

So great is the demand for merchandise of all kinds, he said, that wholesalers are having difficulty promising deliveries within six week. He added:

"The textile firms are swamped with orders, and with wage increases and dividend bonuses just going into effect, the increase is becoming more startling every day.

"As things are going now, I believe that December of this year may be better than December, 1929."

In addition to the volume jump, O'Connell cited another important factor for optimism. This is the fact that the average price per sale in all lines of goods has shown almost an equal increase in the past few weeks. He explained:

"This shows that people are tired of buying the cheap merchandise they were forced to be satisfied with during the depression."

AMERICAN LIFE IN 3D CENTURY

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Prof. Hermann von Walde-Waldegg, archeologist of Boston College, returned from the "Eden" of South America today with the announcement he had found proof an American civilization existed in the third century, A. D.

"A clan organization of stone house builders," he said, "extended from Western Colombia across the Western Cordillera of the Andes from about the third century to the tenth or eleventh. These people reached all the way to Ecuador and perhaps to Peru."

For five months, as head of a joint expedition of Boston College and the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Walde has been clearing jungles and exhuming buried statues and temples in the San Augustin region of Colombia.

Dr. Walde's most valuable discovery, he said, was a huge calendar stone.

"The hieroglyphs are chiseled," he said. "They show a division into 80 solar cycles, 120 lunar cycles, and another division of groupings into 14 and 20 which may be months, but it will take careful study before this can be determined."

Among the objects exhumed by the scientist were 73 huge stone statues, the largest more than 20 feet tall, which he said probably were being worshipped in America while Christianity was struggling to gain a foothold in the Roman Empire.

LABOR CONDEMNS EASTERN AID IN MARITIME STRIKE

Tampa, Fla., Nov. 19 (INS)—The American Federation of Labor today formally adopted a resolution condemning the current so-called rank-and-file strikes of seamen on the eastern seaboard in sympathy with the West Coast ship-labor troubles.

There was little debate on the resolution and only a few "No's" echoed through the hall when Matthew Woll, chairman of the A. F. of L. resolutions committee, submitted a favorable report on the measure and ask its adoption.

The committee made the resolution the subject of a special report to speed its adoption by the labor congress meeting here.

George Woolf, president of the Alaska Cannery Workers Union Local No. 20,195, of San Francisco, was one of the few who sought recognition in order to express opposition to the resolution. He was not recognized by President Green.

DISCUSS SPAIN

Later, Woolf said that cooperation of eastern strikers was essential to success of the strike on the West Coast, and that he had intended explaining this to the convention. He did not seem greatly perturbed by failure of Green to recognize him, however.

Today's session provided an opportunity for discussion of labor troubles all over the world, with Spencer Miller, Jr., of New York, director of the Workers Education Bureau of America, outlining the situation in Spain.

"I believe," he said, "we must have a sense of deepening concern about the trend in the world toward military dictatorships and the elimination of democraic government."

FACE GRAVE CRISIS

Turning directly to the position of the trade union in world affairs, Miller concluded:

"The trade union movement which is the bulwark of democracy is the first institution to be liquidated with the coming of Fascism. It cannot be weakened in one country without being weakened in every other.

"Today the trade union movement is face to face with a grave crisis which threatens its very existence. In the presence of such a world-wide crisis for labor, is it not imperative that we close our ranks both at home and abroad to revision and dissension?"

Striking N. Y. Seamen Seeking New Recruits

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Striking New York seamen turned to newly arriving ships today in hope of additional support in their walkout after a concerted effort to prevent the United States Liner Washington from sailing for Europe had failed.

Strike leaders claimed 75 men of the American Importer had joined their ranks, and they continued preparations for a drive next week to enlist aid of seamen on the President Roosevelt, sister ship of the Washington, when she arrives from Europe.

Coast Strike Bound Vessels Reach 181

San Francisco, Nov. 19 (AP)—Relief from the maritime strike blockade appeared near today for Alaska and Hawaii, but the shipper-union deadlock, paralyzing coast commerce, was unbroken as the walkout entered its 21st day.

With 37,000 maritime workers on strike, the number of strike-bound vessels reached 181, including the big liner President Coolidge. Operators of another liner ordered her to dock at a Mexican port to avoid a tieup.

Action by President Roosevelt forecast relief to Alaska, where the blockade has caused a sharp reduction of perishable food supplies. The President authorized the government-owned Alaska railroad to operate government and private ships for transportation of necessities.

Mansfield Joins Mayors In Strike Mediation Plea

Washington, Nov. 19 (INS) — Thirty-four leading members of the U. S. conference of mayors offered their services today as mediators in the controversy within the American Federation of Labor over craft-versus-industrial unionism.

In a telegram to the federation convention in Tampa, Fla., the mayors appealed to union leaders to settle all differences, warning chaos would follow if labor set up two conflicting organizations in larger cities.

Mayors Fiorella LaGuardia of New York, S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia, Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, Frederick W. Mansfield of Boston, Angelo J. Rossi of San Francisco, Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, and former Mayor John W. Smith of Detroit headed the list signing the appeal.

Signers of the appeal included: Henry Martens, of Springfield, Mass., and J. Fred Manning, of Lynn, Mass.

Carmell Blames Reds For Seamen's Strife

Deliberate attempts to wreck the program of the International Seamen's Union today were charged to Communists allegedly responsible for the current seamen's strike in American ports by Daniel D. Carmell, general counsel for the union.

Carmell declared the Reds disrupted negotiations between the union and shipowners throughout the country.

A radical union disbanded at that time and its members joined the American Federation of Labor unit for the purpose of fomenting trouble in its ranks, Carmell said.

Students Attack Shops

Warsaw, Nov. 19 (AP)—A crowd of youths wearing agricultural college caps smashed the windows of Jewish shops and injured one Jewish bookseller here today.

$12,000 BLAZE IN TAUNTON

Taunton, Nov. 19—A dozen firemen were treated for frostbite here today as all available apparatus battled a two-alarm blaze which raced through a wooden business block, doing damage estimated at $12,000.

The flames started in the kitchen of Hernler's restaurant and cafe on Winthrop street, and spread rapidly to Johquin Gill's liquor store and James Farley's barber shop, also on Winthrop street.

An icy wind and near zero temperature made the work of fighting the blaze difficult.

Police believed the fire to have been of accidental origin, probably having been caused by a defective kitchen chimney.

Crew Feared Lost as SOS Is Found in Bottle

Quebec, Nov. 19 (AP)—A cryptic bottle-borne S. O. S. message, cast up on the beach of lonely Anticosti Island, aroused anxiety for the lives of an unknown ship's crew in the storm-whipped Gulf of St. Lawrence today.

The message, scrawled in almost illegible characters, read:

"Help. We have nothing to eat. We are in the middle of the gulf. S. S. Chabot."

Signal service men were unable to tell how long the bottle had been tossed about on the waters, nor could they identify any such craft as the "S. S. Chabot" in their registries.

Apparently it was from some Gaspe peninsula fishermen's barque. In such a case, mariners held little hope for the crew's safety, since a fierce storm has been raging in the Gulf for days and the chances of a small craft weathering the mountainous seas appeared to be negligible.

RACE "DOPING" TO GRAND JURY

Assistant United States Attorney William T. McCarthy has gone before a Federal grand jury with information concerning the alleged doping of horces and dogs at Massachusetts tracks, it was learned today.

The grand jury, it is understood, was presented reports of the state racing commission concerning the alleged doping of the horse Sky Lad, at Suffolk Downs last August.

Chairman Charles F. Connors and William H. Ensign of the state racing commission were closeted with McCarthy today, who refused to comment on the purpose of their concerefence. All three, however, later went to the office of William M. Clark, New England supervisor of the Federal Narcotic Bureau.

Commenting on the Sky Lad incident, McCarthy would only say:

"We are going through with this case."

Three witnesses, mysteriously missing, are being sought by Federal agents.

Medford Recount Shows Dry Gain

Possibility that Medford may be dry as regards both hard liquors and beer loomed today out of the recount which is now taking place.

Medford voted wet on the beer question by a margin of 25 votes in the first count. But with half the precincts recounted, the city now stands dry on beer by 111 votes.

Medford voted dry on the sale of hard liquors by the glass, and the recount, half finished, shows the dry margin growing larger. The original margin was 882 and it now stands at 1071.

There is no recount on package stores. Medford voted to permit these to remain open.

Employment Gains

Employment in Massachusetts manufacturing establishments in October was 5.1 per cent greater than in the same month last year with wages increased 8.3 per cent in the same period, the State Division of Statistics revealed today.

TRINIDAD STOP SATURDAY FOR PRESIDENT

Aboard U. S. S. Chester, Roosevelt Flotilla, Nov. 19—(US) — Speeding southeast at 25 knots an hour, President Roosevelt is well in the Gulf Stream on his 7000-mile voyage to South America to open the Pan-American Peace Conference in Buenos Aires and pay goodwill calls at Rio De Janeiro and Montevideo.

The Cruiser Indianapolis, on which the President and his immediate party are traveling, and the convoying cruiser Chester were pointing a course under forced draft to Mona Passage between Puerto Rica and Santo Domingo.

The President spent his first day and night at sea studying communications brought from Washington, and for relaxation witnessed a motion picture program on deck.

The sea was running smooth, but the weather was cloudy.

The first stop, for refueling, will be made at Trinidad, off Venezuela, Saturday morning.

The President shoved off from the navy yard dock at Charleston, S. C., shortly after detraining from the special train that brought him south from Washington.

Four Men Killed In Mine Blast

Bales, Ark., Nov. 19 (INS)—Four men were killed instantly and another was seriously injured in a coal mine explosion here today.

Officials of the Bates Coal Mining Co., wher the accident occurred, said only five men were in the mine at the time of the explosion.

Tugwell's Policies to Continue Under Alexander Rule

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—Policies of Rexford G. Tugwell will go marching on, it was indicated today, even though the "brain truster" will not be here to administer them.

For instance, there is the farm tenancy program, which already has been started by Tugwell and which is bound up with theories of "paternalistic" government so roundly denounced by anti-New Dealers.

Dr. Will W. Alexander, Tugwell assistant, slated to fill his chief's shoes as resettlement administrator, has come out for a plan which is a virtual continuation of the Tugwell undertaking.

Dr. Alexander, former Methodist minister says the program should be a long range one, in which farmers would be closely supervised as the government helps them to rise from the status of farm tenants to land owners.

"If you handed most of the tenants land they couldn't keep it unless they had guidance and supervision," Alexander declared.

Tugwell's agency already has acquired 74,000 acres of farm land in southern states, with the idea of permitting tenants to buy it, over a long period and under close supervision.

Tugwell's resignation as resettlement administrator and under-Secretary of Agriculture was due at least in part, friends intimated, to the fact that he was tired of being the target of anti-administration criticism.

SUICIDE STIRS PARIS RIOTS

Paris, Nov. 19 (INS) — Rioting broke out in Paris and Lille today as Leftist crowds charged that Interior Minister Roger Salengro, who committed suicide, was "driven to death" by Rightist attacks.

Premier Leon Blum pleaded for order, but large sections of public opinion saw parallels in Salengro's gas death to the persecution of Dreyfus and to the Stavisky case.

Two thousand persons swarmed through the Champs Elysses, smashing the windows of Le Figaro, throngs surged through the streets shouting imprecations against the "Fascist assassin," and printers of the reactionary "Gringoire" refused to issue the new edition of the paper which renewed the allegations that Salengro deserted to the Germans in the World War.

KILLING LINKED TO GAMBLING HOLDUPS

curred in a night club, operating after legal hours, and night club owners, who have been disregarding the closing law, are so fearful that several "hot spots" closed promptly on time last Saturday at midnight, despite the presence of football celebrators.

The race-room holdups began several weeks ago but police activity is of very recent date, culminating in the formation yesterday of the "Tommy-gun" squad.

Federal investigation of the theft of 11 guns from a Back Bay postal garage helped to throw a spotlight on the situation but the killing of Sullivan was the thing that brought it publicity.

LINKS AUTO IN HOLDUP

The Federal authorities are of the opinion the guns—which were later returned, because the thieves feared the 25-year Federal penalty—were intended for use by the gang preying on the operators of illicit gambling enterprises.

Sullivan was an election worker for one of the candidates at the polling place at the William McKinley School, St. Mary's street, Boston, near the Brookline boundary.

He was using an automobile which, according to police, had been identified by its plates as figuring in some of the number pool holdups. The authorities learned Sullivan had just come into possession of the machine.

SLAIN IN CAR

As the polls closed on election night he was seized, forced into another machine, shot in the head, stabbed in the neck and thrown out on Ivy street, Brookline, about a hundred yards from the school.

Whether the wounds were dealt to him in Boston or Brookline may never be known. He was found dying on the doorstep of the home of Dr. Robert B. Greenough, 93 Ivy street, by Mrs. Greenough.

After a brief period of consciousness, during which he refused to answer any questions, Sullivan died 24 hours later at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

LINK UP HOLDUPS

Sullivan had not been taken far out of a direct route from the McKinley school, around the corner into Ivy street, because he had been seen at the school within 15 minutes of the time when he was found dying on the Greenough doorstep.

Gradually, as Brookline police delved into the case, the series of holdups in the background came to official notice. Previously numerous tips had been sent to newspaper offices about holdups of big "bookie" rooms, but the police professed ignorance of the location of these places.

Swiftly it developed, out of police inquiry and by other means, that big hauls had been made by the holdup ring at a place on Broadway and at several other places in various parts of the city. This the police officially revealed.

PROBE SECOND KILLING

It was also disclosed that the first lieutenant of one of the biggest number pool operators in the city had been seized, thrown into an automobile and robbed of large collections at gunpoint before being tossed out again.

From the South End, where most of the robberies have occurred, the inquiry moved into the North End and touched the biggest operator of illegal gambling enterprises in New England, but the details have not been straightened out, or at least not officially announced.

Another killing—that of a man whose body was thrown on the front steps of a hospital—is also believed linked to the robberies. A friend of the dead man, it is said, tried to pass a check taken with a large amount of cash in one of the number pool holdups.

Mrs. Greenough, who found Sullivan dying on her doorstep on election night, told her story of the dramatic incident today for the first time publicly. She said:

"I was listening to the radio election returns.

"The bell rang and I thought it was Dr. Greenough returning from a call.

"Sally, the maid, answered the bell and came into the living room to tell me there was a man, evidently very drunk, standing at the door.

"I investigated. The man was standing reeling from side to side.

"As I reached the door he mumbled incoherently and collapsed. I called the Brookline police. I still thought he was drunk.

"Sally, in the meantime, had looked at him again and told me he was bleeding profusely from a head wound.

"I went to the door again and told him I had called the police and he said 'All right—thanks, lady.'

"I didn't hear any noise prior to that time, but after the police had gone I walked outside my home and noticed a large pool of blood on the sidewalk.

"There were other bloodstains along the wall. The bushes had been trampled and they too bore signs of blood.

"Evidently he had fallen twice trying to reach the door.

"The memory of it will never leave my mind. Somehow I feel sorry that I left that poor chap on the steps, but as I say I had no idea it was murder."

into Governor Curley's bronchial tubes.

FRIENDS WILL FIGHT

The hearing for Dr. Overholser, whom the governor desires to replace with Dr. David L. Williams of Jamaica Plain, had been set at the instance of the Massachusetts Medical Society.

Dr. Charles E. Mongan and Dr. A. S. Begg, president and secretary, respectively, of the society, stated that their organization wanted to express opposition to Dr. Overholser's removal and indicated that a large number of physicians would be in attendance when the matter was aired.

Friends of Dr. Overholser have been active on his behalf since the Governor disclosed weeks ago that he would not reappoint the present commissioner.

By a vote of 6 to 3, the council voted to hear the protest of the medical society.

U. S. Court Wants Tags For Chinese

"Be good enough to put marks on these men so we'll know them when they reappear here November 23," said Commissioner Harry N. Guterman in United States Court today at the arraignment of 15 Chinese on narcotic charges. "Give the men some sort of tag. I noticed some did not respond to the names on which they are held."

"I cannot rechristen them," countered Michael Doyle of their counsel, who entered their pleas of not guilty.

The men were taken in a raid by William E. Clark, New England supervisor of the Federal Narcotic Bureau, and his assistant, John A. Sheehan, in an opium den in a basement in Oxford street, Chinatown, Saturday night.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

GENERAL FIGHTS TO DELAY TEST DEATH TRIAL

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 19 (INS)—Counsel for Brigadier General Henry D. Denhardt today sought technical cause to delay his examining trial tomorrow.

Investigators for the Commonwealth at the same time were completing ballistic and chemical tests which they expect will warrant County Judge A. S. Morgan in holding the colorful 60-year-old soldier-politician to the grand jury for the murder of his fiancee, Verna Gary Taylor, 40-year-old La Grange widow.

The scene of the legal battle on the general's behalf shifted to the state capitol at Frankfort. There Defense Attorney Bodes K. Myers presented a petition which asked the appeals court to require Judge Morgan to enter an order making the Commonwealth's gruesome collection of exhibits available to the defense, and postponing the examining trial ten days.

Judge Morgan, sitting at New Castle, seat of the county where Mrs. Taylor's violent death occurred, Nov. 6, refused to accede to this defense demand.

Mrs. Taylor's bullet-pierced body was found in a roadside ditch several hundred feet from the general's stalled car, about 35 miles northeast of Louisville. The general's 45-calibre army revolver, with two empty chambers, was lying nearby.

General Denhardt today discussed his position for the first time since his counsel forbade him to do so at the coroner's inquest into Mrs. Taylor's death. He said:

"If I were going to commit a murder I wouldn't be 600 feet away. Verna's body was found that distance from where I was standing and talking to a farmer when the second shot was fired. He and his wife corroborated me in this at the inquest."

He denied the assertion of members of the Taylor family the widow accompanied him on the fatal ride in order to return his diamond engagement ring.

G. L. Klages, Police Cameraman, Dies

George L. Klages, 46, of 91 Hollingsworth street, Mattapan, a police photographer attached to the bureau of records at headquarters, died today while being rushed to the City hospital in an ambulance.

A World War veteran, he joined the department in 1922 and was assigned as a photographer to the Mattapan station. In 1934 he was transferred to headquarters.

On July 4, 1924, he saved several children from injury when a cache of fireworks exploded at Mattapan pond.

He is survived by his widow and four children.

Mrs. Fitzgerald Back From Cruise

Radio Singer Plunges to Death

La Salle, Ill., Nov. 19 (AP)—Dell Reed, 28, formerly known as the "Dixie tenor" with orchestras and a radio network, plunged to death from his fourth-floor room in a hotel here last night.

Police said Reed, former resident of Louisville, Ky., apparently had been despondent since he received a letter from a woman in Chicago Monday.

2nd Slaying Hinted In Swing-Death Probe

Los Angeles, Nov. 19 (INS)—A new development in the Reid Russell death mystery, so fantastic that authorities barely hinted at its implications, caused a virtual censorship to be imposed today on the spectacular investigation.

It was reported that the possible murder of another man in the vicinity of the estate of Gouverneur Morris, noted author, where Russell's body was found in a garden swing, a bullet hole through his head, was under investigation.

Whether this startling new factor indicated that a homicidal maniac was being sought, or that Russell had incurred the enmity of a cold-blooded murderer who blasted out his life and then calmly placed him in the swing in a manner to indicate suicide, was not disclosed.

District Attorney Buron Fitts held a lengthy conference with Capt. Clyde Plummer, his chief investigator, countermanded preparations to seek a court order for the exhumation of Russell's body, and said he would confer again today with Plummer.

While neither Fitts nor Plummer would discuss the report that a new murder was being investigated, the rumor came from apparently reliable sources in Manhattan Beach, where Russell died.

Fitts did not reveal whether he believes, as does Plummer, that Russell was murdered, or holds the equally tenable opinion that the handsome 28-year-old Russell, despondent over financial reverses, carried out threats he had made to his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Morris and Lila Lee, the film actress, to commit suicide.

TAX EXCHANGE HITS BOSTON

Annual settlement of accounts between the state and the cities and towns will take place tomorrow in the state treasurer's office at the State House.

To meet the state tax of $10,000,000, metropolitan district assessment of $9,000,000, the Boston Elevated deficiency of $2,000,000 and miscellaneous charges, the cities and towns will be required to pay over to the treasurer $21,000,000.

From the income tax receipts, corporation taxes, race and other receipts the municipalities will receive a total of $16,000,000 from the state. An initial payment of $6,000,000 from the income tax was paid the cities and towns last March, otherwise the total payments to them tomorrow would be $22,000,000.

Boston, heaviest contributor to the metropolitan district expenses and to the Elevated deficiency, will not fare so well in the exchange. This city will hand over a check for $8,719,254.02 to the state and receive in return a check for $2,223,669.73. Last March Boston got $1,258,000 as its share at the time of the income tax receipts.

Funeral Plans

Arrangements were to be completed today for the funeral of John R. Oxner, 77, of Marshfield.

CURLEY READY FOR NEW DRIVE IN POLITICS

Any thought that his defeat for United States Senate has eliminated him from the political arena was definitely dispelled today by Governor Curley.

In a radio address from his Jamaicaway home, where he is still confined with a severe cold, the veteran campaigner characterized his defeat merely as "a temporary estoppel in my career."

In his address, based chiefly on thanking the thousands of voters who supported him in the recent election, the Governor failed to mention, however, just where his next "field of political battle" would be.

That his recent defeat, however, has not stopped his desire or plans to again seek political office, was made very clear by Governor Curley when he said:

"The contest is over, and, after all the facts have been weighed, it is found nearly three-quarters of a million persons cast their votes in my behalf.

TEMPORARY ESTOPPEL

"In view of the circumstances, it is a tribute in which any individual may take justifiable pride, and is clearly indicative that, while it marks a temtemporary estoppel in my career, it cannot, in any sense, be considered enduring or permanent in character."

Later the governor said:

"Again, to those who saw fit to support my candidacy and with no bitterness in my heart for those who honestly voted against that candidacy, until we meet again on the field of political battle, I am grateful."

Such was the tone of the governor's address—not a bit bitter and clearly indicating it was not one of "farewell."

Other highlights in the address included a reference to his opponent in the Senatorial race, Thomas C. O'Brien, as a "Democratic Hessian."

Continuing, Governor Curley made a veiled reference to Father Coughlin, declaring:

"I have no bitterness in my heart against any individual who was misled by a sincere yet misguided advocate of Social Justice."

The governor reviewed the accomplishments of his administration on Beacon Hill, citing the surplus in the state treasury, balanced budget, restoration of step-rate salary increases, the 48-hour law for institution employes, putting the credit of the Commonwealth on a better basis, advocating "progressive, constructive, humane, labor legislation" and helping New England industries to prosper through helpful legislation.

SELF-RESPECT VITAL

"The chief problem confronting me during the past two years," the governor stated, "has been the preservation of self-respect of the unemployed citizens of the Commonwealth.

"And to this laudable work I have given most freely of time and energy with the results that some 15,000 more persons have been employed during the past year by the state than in any previous time in the history of the commonwealth with but slight additional burden to the taxpayers."

Again thanking those who voted for him, Governor Curley said:

"I am sincerely grateful to the nearly three-quarters of a million persons who cast their votes for me in the recent contest for the senatorship of the United States.

"It was a most unusual expression of confidence given under most unusual conditions and was a declaration of faith in me and my administration of the affairs of the Commonwealth and my public record extending over a period of a third of a century on behalf of the people, such as few men have been privileged to enjoy."

Planes Salute at Shobe Rites

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP)—Planes flew overhead today during funeral services held here for John H. Shobe, 35-year-old Boston aviator fatally injured Sunday in a crash near Syracuse, N. Y., which also cost the lives of his two passengers.

Shobe, a native of Lima, O., was a test pilot for a Detroit airplane manufacturer before going to Boston three years ago to form an aviation sales company. He became well known in New England for his numerous flights on newspaper assignments.

He leaves a widow, two sons, his mother, three brothers and two sisters.

DEATH COMES TO 'PRETTY BOY' FLOYD

By MELVIN PURVIS

CHAPTER XXXIII

During the negotiations which we hoped would result in our receiving Richetti, we were to'd that we had produced no warrant for the prisoner from Kansas City.

[illegible]

Perilous Meeting

[illegible]

Identification

[illegible] call from one of the Special Agents who informed me that he had just interviewed a farmer who stated [illegible]

[illegible] might be hiding beneath them. The sounds continued: someone was [illegible]

[illegible] I knew that he wasn't to be taken alive.

[illegible]

PRETTY BOY FLOYD

[illegible] on the ground between her and the ram.

Floyd Found

[illegible] sumed the inquiry as [illegible] as possible. [illegible] about two or [illegible]

As we approached [illegible] three [illegible] and one man [illegible] from behind a corn crib [illegible] and the car was [illegible] backed into its original position behind the corn crib.

I saw through the back window of their car that the person in the rear seat resembled Floyd. We [illegible] in front of the [illegible] out of the car, [illegible] ourselves [illegible] to furnish too great a target for him.

The [illegible] was built of wood [illegible] little more than [illegible] underneath it and underneath the running boards of the car [illegible] and there we could see a pair of blue-trousered legs getting out of the car.

We approached gradually and then saw Floyd running toward the woods. He tried to run a zigzag path across the open field and he had his 45 automatic in his hand. We commanded him to [illegible]

One of the Special Agents had [illegible] two of us carried [illegible] knowing that the [illegible] would be the most effective weapon with which to [illegible] commanded the other [illegible] to get out of the way of the machine gun. He [illegible] and fired [illegible] The rataplan of [illegible] rang out and [illegible] the wooded back [illegible]

[illegible] these crepitating [illegible] from the shot-[illegible] and the [illegible] of the rifles [illegible] over a mead[illegible]

Floyd's body was lying on the grass, and as we approached him he struggled in a futile effort to fire his automatic. He had been wounded in the right arm which prevented his shooting, and as we came up I kicked the gun out of his hand and picked it up.

We examined him hurriedly. His only wounds had just been inflicted. We found another gun on him and this one had been arranged so that it would shoot full automatic by one pressure on the trigger, quite an ingenious device.

Floyd Dies

I said to him:

"You're Pretty-Boy Floyd."

He replied:

"I am Charles Arthur Floyd."

He did not seem to like the appellation. After a few moments I left the [illegible] and to call the director in Washington.

One of the Special Agents and I drove at breakneck speed to the next farm where there was a telephone. The [illegible] whose farm this capture had been made, had no telephone.

One of the special agents asked Floyd if he had been present at the [illegible] of the bad-headed Frank Nash at the Kansas City massacre.

Floyd, his life ebbing away in the corn field, raised himself and shouted obscenities, then, strength failing, he lay back for comfort.

"I wouldn't tell you nothing," he [illegible] he died a most [illegible]

We [illegible] Floyd's body in a car [illegible] news of [illegible] capture [illegible] from all parts.

[illegible]

The special agent is subject of Melvin Purvis' absorbing "American Agent" installment tomorrow in the Boston Evening American.

Choice WAYS OF Serving VENISON

By MARTHA LEE

HAS DADDY gone a-hunting? And did he return proud of his ability as a hunter or did he get the game meat at the market?

Whichever is the case, deer or venison is the kind most usually brought home from these trips. Deer should hang two weeks or longer according to taste, before using. It [illegible] be cut into steaks and broiled or into roasts and cooked in the oven.

BROILED VENISON STEAK

Wipe steak, sprinkle with salt and pepper and brush generously with melted butter. Place [illegible] greased broiler and broil [illegible] minutes [illegible] according to [illegible]. Venison should be [illegible] rare but well browned on the surface. Remove to hot platter and pour over Maitre d'Hotel Butter or Chestnut Sauce seasoned with 3 tablespoons Madeira wine.

ROAST VENISON

Have your market man lard the venison for you or you can lard it yourself if you have a larding needle. Cut salt pork into strips ¼ inch in diameter, thread the needle and pull them through the top of the venison as though you were basting [illegible] so that each stitch has about 2 inches of [illegible] pork. Put in the dripping pan with half a pint of water and [illegible] butter. Dredge with salt and pepper and roast in a hot oven for 2 to 3 hours, basting every 10 or 15 minutes.

Don't Reduce Too Fast! Why Invite Wrinkles?

By IDA JEAN KAIN

WHEN slimming down to perfect weight impairs health, look into the method—don't blame the lost pounds. The harm in reducing comes from losing weight too quickly, starving on an inadequate diet, reducing without benefit of exercise, and, in some cases, reducing too far.

Fast reducing is probably the worst offender, for it necessarily means [illegible] needs and, moreover [illegible] on the reducer.

Should a Young Woman Make 'Open Confession' Before Marriage?

Salutary Guide for All Young People With Acne Skins

By DONNA GRACE

FROM a number of letters that come to me from time to time, I know that many of my correspondents need advice on that most annoying skin infection—acne. So I have set aside today's space for a talk on the subject that bewilders and annoys so many of you, and for which it is so difficult to find any immediate relief.

One young girl writes that she massages her face with a salve and uses a hot cloth for this trouble, but instead of improving, it is worse than ever after such treatment. Of course, it is worse than ever. Any infection that is massaged will spread, especially when the heat is applied.

Acne is [illegible] a surface infection that results from a functional [illegible] secretion. [illegible] so self conscious and embarrassed.

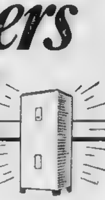
"I HEARTILY RECOMMEND

Electric Water Heaters"

BUILDING EXPERT TELLS HOMEOWNERS



"MOST ECONOMICAL" says CHARLES A. GLEASON

[illegible] Edward T. Harrington Co.

"Builders and property owners want to know why we recommend installing electric water heaters in our new homes at [illegible] Heights, Arlington. The answer is—they're years ahead of others. Imagine hot water from the tap, clean enough to drink or cook with. That's how clean the Monel Metal tank keeps it. Economical to operate, with no repair costs to anticipate, the electric water heater is built to give service, as good ten years later as the day installed."

"REAL ECONOMY"

"Present users' bills prove the real economy of electric water heating," says Mr. Gleason. "The heating unit is immersed in the water. Heat can't be wasted. This, plus the special water heating rate for Edison Customers, saves users many dollars a year."

"LIFETIME INVESTMENT"

"A water heater is a long term purchase," Mr. Gleason explains. "Operating cost, not first cost alone, should be the yardstick used . . . With no parts to burn, wear, or corrode, no repairs once installed, no replacement of tank every few years, as with other heaters, an electric water heater is a lifetime investment in satisfaction and comfort."

NO DOWN PAYMENT

Liberal allowance on your old heater — 3 years to pay and free installation to Edison Service Customers, except in a few cases due to location.

Nation's No. 1 Sweethearts

Smiles reveal the happiness of this romantic couple, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Ethel du Pont, of the famed powder making family of Delaware. They were photographed at the Boston airport after arriving by plane. Young Roosevelt is back at his desk in Harvard today as Miss du Pont visits friends in Dover. Tomorrow the heiress and the son of the President will be entertained at Providence.

Roosevelt, Fiancee in Boston

MISS DU PONT VISITS FRIENDS

Since not even love is a valid excuse for cutting classes at Harvard, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., here with his fiancee, Miss Ethel du Pont, had to turn his back, temporarily, on romance today.

While young Franklin was resuming his studies Miss du Pont was a guest at the Dover home of Mrs. Alfred Hallowell, the former Olivia Morgan of Dedham, her college chum and classmate.

Miss du Pont slept late and denied herself to visitors for the rest of the day.

John Impatient

Tomorrow, the munitions heiress and the president's son will be entertained at the Providence, R. I., home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Jackson, Jr.

Jackson was formerly a classmate of young Roosevelt at Harvard.

John Roosevelt, young brother of Franklin, was to have been a reception committee, but he became impatient when the plane bringing his brother and the latter's bride-to-be was late.

John "couldn't wait," so he went back to Cambridge.

There wasn't even a taxicab on hand to bring the principals in America's No. 1 romance from the airport into Boston proper.

Miss du Pont smiled her way at once into the hearts of newspaper cameramen, who learned, long ago, to watch their step when attempting to photograph the notoriously skittish Franklin D., Jr.

June Wedding

The gracious young daughter of the [illegible] du Pont [illegible] for pictures and answered questions amiably.

She was wrapped in a mink coat with a brown suede hat, green crepe dress and brown shoes to complete the ensemble.

"Our wedding will be in June," she said, "but we haven't decided on the exact date."

She shivered prettily and pulled her coat more closely about her.

"I hope it gets warmer tonight," she said. "The plane was warm, but we were chilled through getting to the airport.

"We're planning to attend the Harvard-Yale football game at New Haven, but, if this sort of weather continues, it will be like a polar expedition."

Court Clerk, 70, to Wed Nurse, 35

Culminating a romance of nine years, a 70-year-old retired Boston court clerk and his 35-year-old fiancee have filed intentions to marry in Providence, R. I., it was disclosed today.

The June and December marriage will unite Arthur Wyckham Ashenden, retired clerk of the Boston municipal court, who resides in Newton Center and who for a quarter of a century was a popular figure in the old Pemberton square courthouse, and Miss Helen Mary [illegible] of Lowell avenue, Newton [illegible].

The couple admitted today that they had filed intentions to wed with the hope of keeping their [illegible] from friends and that they [illegible] a few days.

They plan to make their home in the West [illegible].

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

BY

Marjorie McBride

Now that Thanksgiving is just around the corner, a few notes on the great American turkey may not be out of place. Even before he's been stuffed and put in the oven he's a fascinating bird, with more temperament than an opera star.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

Feeling that Patrick J. Davis of Sudbury ought to know something of the whims and vagaries of turkeys after raising them for 15 years, Girl About Town got in touch with the Davis Turkey Farm and made notes.

This being the debunking age, Turkey Raiser Davis first destroyed a few amusing myths that have lingered on for ages. Young turkeys don't catch cold and die when they get their feet wet, he said. Nor is the mortality rate among them especially high. About 90 per cent of all turkeys born on his farm survive until they're marketable. And he raises 5000 annually.

Some turkey raisers string lanterns around the turkey roosts at night, to keep skunks away. Davis doesn't. He finds the lights make the birds uneasy. Moving shadows frighten them and they take flight and get injured.

In the daytime, the turkeys prowl the farm. At night, they are herded into shelters by the hands, and six big St. Bernard dogs. The hunting instinct in a St. Bernard is pretty well submerged, and he never yields to temptation and attacks one of his charges.

A scientifically-raised turkey eats ground oats, beef scraps, flour middlings, wheat bran, dried milk, alfalfa leaf meal, powdered [illegible] and green clover.

There are more turkeys this year, Farmer Davis says, and also there is a greater demand for them. They'll probably be dearer, because the price of feed has gone up almost 100 per cent, but the increase won't be enough to keep the bird off the common table.

The Sudbury turkey expert admits the birds are the flightiest of fowl, and easily stampeded. On moonlight nights, they huddle closer [illegible] among themselves, and fearfully watch the moving shadows. Attacked by skunks or rats, their only defense is in flight.

A young turkey is known to the trade as a "poult." They're good eating at from two to five months.

AS A FAIR SPECIMEN OF THE high-voltage, mail order salesmanship which many of the unknown, silo colleges are employing to sell themselves to the public through football, read the following letter addressed to Dr. John A. Harmon of Boston University. The missive, typed on a multi-colored letter-head which shows a halfback running against a large yellow football, comes from the business manager of Hardin-Simmons University of Abilene, Texas, and says:

Dear Mr. Harmon—I have your letter and note your reaction to our proposed intersectional game next season. I feel like we have something down here that you need in Boston and firmly believe that we can fill any stadium in Boston if we carry out our program. It looks like to me with a good football team from Texas, our famous cowboy band, a special train and the publicity that we can put behind it will fill any stadium in the East.

I am sure a $4000 guarantee does not scare you off and if I did not feel like we could put this situation over I would not be wasting your time and mine. We can have a one year contract and come up there and we would not expect you to come to Texas. Cordially, G. B. Sandefer.

LOCAL COLLEGES ON "SUCKER LIST"

Here is a fair sample of the type of go-get 'em correspondence which clutters up the files of every metropolitan college—pathetic attempts of mud puddle institutions to raise themselves out of obscurity by using football for a bootstrap. The childlike naivete of this one is delightful, but no less so than hundreds of similar sucker solicitations which flood the mails at Harvard, B. C., and B. U. This one blatantly wishes to hook B. U. for a guarantee which would flatten its athletic treasury and at the same time duck any obligations to pay off the visitation a year later. And it is written in the grammatical manner of a sixth grade schoolboy.

NEW RIVER TAUGHT H. C. LESSON

THE TIME IS GRADUALLY PASSING when some barefoot institution can field a sensational team and book contests with the leading cultural halls of the country. Centre College of Kentucky did it successfully in the early '20s and brought up a rodeo collection of yokels in hill billy hats, canvas pants and flannel shirts who stirred the imagination of the Nation by licking the Crimson.

And during the succeeding years while the glamour of [illegible] 'Praying Colonels' was [illegible] the owls and [illegible]

Three years ago Holy Cross [illegible] uncharted college named New River from [illegible] of West Virginia [illegible] against a team of human [illegible] H. C. [illegible] moments of the game. And [illegible] the Purple's next [illegible]

CINDERELLA STILL LIVES

I RECALL THAT PENNSYLVANIA once entered into a tentative contract with a horse-and-buggy college named Yaeger University in Dayton, Ohio, discovering in the nick of time that the "graduate manager" was a downtown barber and the university had neither buildings, campus nor faculty except as they existed under the hat of the hair cutter, who hoped to recruit his varsity from the trainsheds and rolling mills of the vicinity.

Yet the Cinderella legend still lives when a team like Boston University [illegible] to exploit the thousands of [illegible] annually about [illegible] Never-Never wilds of Pennsylvania and arrived at [illegible] only through its hilarious appellation.

St. Mary's of Oakland, Cal., sends [illegible] which, for spangles and motley, [illegible] Brothers. Their shirts are [illegible] are green [illegible] with [illegible] the days before moving on to [illegible]

Such is the kingdom of college football [illegible] the heathen, where faculty managers are [illegible] to make their gate grow greater and the original cultural purpose is drowned under carnival trappings and the general makeup of a touring minstrel show.

And topping it all is the Great Kelley, who is going to need plenty of pushing to keep off any man's All-American eleven. The game's greatest player this season. He loafs and makes mistakes. But in the clutches it is always Kelley who is standing in the middle of the big X.

On this basis the Yales can pat themselves on the back and an[illegible] world that they are [illegible] even before Larry Kelley and Jim Gaffney trot across the bowl to meet at midfield, bow and shake with the officials and [illegible]

Perhaps there is something going on in the pate of the big Egg man and it does not bode any good for the Yales, who figure to beat the Harvards on paper.

Shute Golf Titlist Choice

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov 19—On the strength of his dazzling victory over Al Zimmerman of Portland, Oregon, Denny Shute of Boston entered today as the favorite to cop the P. G. A. title here.

The final may develop into an all Bay State affair [illegible] Harold 'Jug' McSpaden [illegible] Country Club professional has been doing some plain and fancy club work on his own account.

The pair rank high in the field of 16 which this morning started the third round in the money golfers annual classic.

In the form that carried him to the British open championship in 1933, Shute became overnight favorite by knocking six strokes off par for ten holes in the Zimmerman match.

McSpaden earned a [illegible] by eliminating Johnny Revolta, defending champion. McSpaden won on the 19th green after he had been one down with four to play.

Bruins Off To Play Leafs

The Boston Bruins hockey squad [illegible] first [illegible] trip of the year [illegible] for Toronto where the Maple Leafs will be opposed for the first time on Saturday night.

Bruins will jump from Toronto to Chicago for a Sunday night game and will return to Boston for a game with the Black Hawks on Tuesday and with the Montreal M[illegible] on Thursday.

Art Ross and [illegible] the Arena [illegible] departure [illegible] speed and [illegible] the Rangers in the Tuesday night game at the Garden.

Talking it over after the game they felt that the young Rangers Alex Shibicky and the Colville brothers probably are skating as fast now as they will any time this year. The sentiment of the Bruins was that the Boston team would be better prepared to meet such speed the next time the Rangers come to the Garden.

Bruins look forward to two hard games on the road and the next week of hockey with four games scheduled in six nights will be one of the most difficult of the early season.

Stadium Sessions To End Today

A "Yale conscious" Harvard football team winds up its 1936 training season today confident of taking the Yales over the jumps when they meet at the Bowl Saturday afternoon.

To say the [illegible]

In Good Shape

[illegible] Yale offense.

[illegible]

As game time approaches it becomes evident that the "A" team of the past few weeks will open against the Yales. Bobby Green and Don Daughters continued to hold down the flank posts. Neither player, both sophomores, has ever faced a Yale varsity before, but both saw plenty of action against the Blue frosh last fall at Cambridge and won't be entirely unfamiliar with the Yale method of attack.

HANLEY'S NAME ON HONOR ROLL

EAGLE—PLENTY TOUGH. Jim "Call Me Butch" Kissell, rugged 195 pound Boston College guard, is all set for Saturday's big intra-city game with Boston University at Fenway Park.

TERRIER Mentor LAUDED

DOES WONDERS AT B. U.

By JOE CASHMAN

Every other football story one reads these days pictures Dick Harlow of Harvard and Gil Dobie of Boston College as wonder coaches.

We find no fault with this. On the contrary, we readily agree that Harlow and Dobie richly deserve all the praise being heaped upon them.

[illegible]

We would and do add LeRoy "Pat" Hanley of Boston University to the roll.

Overlooked

[illegible]

Roll out of class rooms at Cambridge and Newton and you land on the athletic field. The Terrier candidates must travel all the way from Copley square to Weston for daily practice.

[illegible] of New England.

A high school hero receives no inducement and has little incentive to continue his grid career at B. U. If he elects to do so, he runs into plenty of hardships.

And, under these adverse conditions, the Hanley ability and personality has put the Terriers squarely on the gridiron map.

[illegible]

Pat rolled up his sleeves and went to work. He made the sport as attractive as he could for the boys. He threw secrecy out the window and invited the press and public to drop around any time.

He built solid foundations for the Warner system, which he had played under Lone Star Dietz out at Washington State, and had later coached with his brother, Dick, at Northwestern.

[illegible]

Spirits Rise

[illegible]

Pat still was far from being overburdened with material starting out this season, but there was a new spirit in the squad.

Given enthusiasm and loyalty, the mentor supplied all else needed for B. U.'s greatest football season.

[illegible]

Dog Racing

At Rockingham Track Proposed

Concord, N. H., Nov. 19 (AP)—Political leaders said today an attempt would be made to legalize dog racing at the next session of the New Hampshire Legislature.

A financial group, legislators said, has prepared to open a dog track at Salem where the Rockingham Park horse race track now operates.

Governor H. Styles Bridges has strongly opposed dog track legislation. Charles Bowen, one of Governor-elect Francis P. Murphy's closest advisors during the recent political campaign, said today he did not know Murphy's views on the subject.

Layden Has Hopes Hunch Players O. K.

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP)—Elmer Layden, Notre Dame [illegible] have a feeling [illegible]

[illegible]

"Only the 'hunch players' are picking Notre Dame against Northwestern" is the way Layden put it. "They say that Northwestern beat us last year to end a nine game winning streak.

"Northwestern, undefeated in ten games, is supposed to be in the same spot this year, and it follows that we should win.

"Such was not the case," he continued. "Last year we played Pittsburgh, Navy and Ohio State on successive Saturdays and we were 'down' for the Northwestern game. Northwestern had been improving steadily and was 'up.'

In Shape

"Northwestern, however, has had a rather easy time of it against Wisconsin and Michigan," he concluded, "and there is no reason for thinking it will be 'down' Saturday. But I hope those 'hunch players' are right, anyway."

"You may be too old for Chicago, Mr. Stagg, but you are plenty young for us."

His College of the Pacific team won the [illegible] Conference championship, first in the school's history.

Happily, Stagg recounted:

"It is the first time in my experience any of my teams blanked all of its Conference opponents. Way back in the stone age of football, at Yale in 1888, we scored 698 points to our opponents' 0 in one season, but we played most of our games against teams who were far below our class."

The silver-thatched veteran who visited the San Francisco Bay district to make an address, said he thought most future improvements would be in the passing side of the game.

McKENNA BEST OF INVADERS

The card for the international boxing tournament at the Garden next Monday night, under the auspices of the Irish American A. A., when amateurs from Ireland, Canada and the United States will battle, is nearing completion.

Tom Kanaly has signed up the two United States representatives from Boston in the featherweight division, when the blanks of Abe Denner of the West End and John Sorenson of Providence were received.

Denner and Sorenson fought in the finals of the recent All America Tourney, and there were several thousand in the Arena audience that night that felt the Providence boy was the better man.

Fine Fighter

The American boys will have their hands full to win the award from William McKenna, a native of Sligo, Ireland, and present [illegible] Army and National Jubilee champion. McKenna has had a great deal of international competition, having represented Ireland against Italy, Hungary, Belgium and England.

First of Morning Musicales Treat for Crowded Hall

Jan Smeterlin, Polish pianist, and Joseph Szigeti, Hungarian violinist, lent their joint forces to a delightful program at the first of the season's series of Boston Morning Musicales yesterday morning at the Hotel Statler.

Will Rogers' Daughter New Screen Star

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service.

Los Angeles, Nov. 19—Mary Rogers, the same little girl who got herself a job as an extra without telling her dad, Will Rogers, is about to be signed on a long term contract by Darryl Zanuck. Only this time Mary comes to 20th Century-Fox as a star in plays to be especially selected for her. There's a real touch of sentiment in Will Rogers' daughter working at the same studio where her father was a beloved star.

But Mary doesn't get the contract through her father's fame. She is a talented actress, having spent the last three summers at the Skowhegan, Maine stock company. She has had dozens of film offers which she has consistently refused, so Darryl feels it a real scoop to have her sign with his company. And Mary is a beauty, too, with a personality that should film like a million.

Who better than Dorothy Kilgallen could write a movie account of her exploits flying around the world? That's what Jack Warner thinks, so he has signed her to a contract to collaborate with George Bricker on "Flyaway Baby," the first of the "Torchy Blane" yarns. This, you will remember, is the series in which Glenda Farrell will play a newspaper woman and Barton MacLane the head of detectives and her big romance.

Appearing together for the first time since they made "Henry VIII" in England at the beginning of their careers, Wendy Barrie and Binnie Barnes will be reunited in Universal's racetrack picture, "Sport of Kings." Much of the story will be shot at Santa Anita during the height of the racing season. H. Bruce Humberstone will direct the yarn written by Philip and Finley Peter Dunne Jr.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Chick Meehan doesn't see how Villanova [illegible] anything new in the way [illegible] at his Manhattan squad [illegible] game Saturday.

"Villanova is a typical Rockne system squad," explains Chick, "and we've already met six teams this season who've been using exactly that type of play. That's why we're stressing our own offense this week rather than spending too much time on defense work against an attack we ought to know."

IF GOVERNOR CURLEY GOES TO HIS OFFICE today he will be violating the orders of Dr. Martin English, his personal physician, who ordered him to bed and told him to stay there . . . Meantime Beacon Hill is buzzing with stories . . . One report has it that a bloc comprising Lieutenant-Governor Joe Hurley, and Councillors Brennan and Hennessey will be obstinate in confirming Curley appointments . . . But the lieutenant governor will not be a party to the bloc . . . He will be appointed commissioner of public utilities . . . Another insists that Judge Arthur W. Dolan will be promoted to a higher bench by Governor-elect Hurley, and that Judge Gillen is slated for an elevation, too . . . When Judge Dolan moves to a higher court, perhaps the Supreme Court, Attorney John Mahoney will leave the desk of chief secretary to the new governor and become a judge of probate . . . It's even money that Sam Wragg will be the next president of the Senate . . . And a great show of wealth by the quondam campaign manager of a former governor started riders on the Copley Plaza Merry Go Round . . . He flashed $ 5 000 — 30 bills of the $500 denomination — it's a down payment on his services as a member of the legal staff of one of the mightiest corporations . . . The 5th of next month will see the gentleman's leave-taking of Boston for an office in a mid-Western city . . . The Roosevelt boom for a third-term has started already . . . From politics to another form of sport is not too broad a jump, so this column passes along the information that the sensational "Hank" Soar has resisted efforts of the National Pro Football League to wean him away from the Shamrocks . . . Soar has signed next year's contract which calls for $5000, the same sum mentioned by the National League Giants in their first overtures.

A Chuckle in the Mail:

For a young lady who refuses to be interviewed "in person," it seems fairly brash for Margaret Sullavan to permit her press-agent to send out mimeograph bulletins on what she thinks about this and that. The blurb reads that Miss Sullavan is the only female star in the American Theater on the "right side of thirty." Star?

And pointing the critical telescope at a theatrical firmament which holds Katharine Cornell, Helen Hayes, Grace George, Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Lawrence, Judith Anderson, Jane Cowl, Ina Claire, the question occurs: "Which is the right side of thirty?"

Once Over Lightly:

[illegible]

Sam Robbins is using a common house-screen for the sound-effect of a gourd in his instrumentations at the Somerset Balinese Room . . . The Mayfair will feed 800 children Thanksgiving noon, with Captain Daley of Station 4, and the South End Democratic Club distributing tickets . . . At the Little Harlem, 200 youngsters will have a party of their own, with entertainment the same day . . . Honey Manevitch, one of the city's most ardent Lodge supporters, will be a candidate for city councilman . . . The "Wally" of the Penthouse dance team of "Wally and Fay" is Wally Marrow who played quarterback for the U. of Nebraska, 1929-31. He started the East-West game of his senior year, and "Fay" is Doris Fay, of Watertown, daughter of Temple H. Fay, the stock-broker, and in private life Mrs. Marrow . . .

Theatrical Stuff:

Lou Irwin, who represents Ethel Merman and Mitzi Mayfair, last night signed the name of Frances Williams to a contract calling for the blonde singer's appearance in Boston Monday night as co-star with the Duncan Sisters in the show so paradoxically called "New Faces." Besides the Duncan Sisters and Miss Williams, who were contemporaneous on Broadway [illegible] years ago this Christmas, Imogene Coca, the featured player, is the young veteran of the revue format . . . And Marion Martin, the blonde, once worked for Larry Fay and Tex Guinan . . . Bert Lahr, the comical man whose great modesty and out-of-focus face gives him the startled appearance of a shocked [illegible], won a decision over a [illegible] which was news to his press-agents present and past . . . Bert gave the gang that a thorough going-over when they were youngsters around the corner of Wilkins and Intervale avenues, the Bronx . . . Bert started festivities by planting a dish of ice cream in the [illegible] gangster's face, and sailed in with his fists for a unanimous decision . . . They used to call Bert "Swedish" in those early days.

Chatter:

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Strange Neighbor

Boston Woman's Tale of Woman Downstairs Who Came Calling With An Axe

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

"How can I have an adventure?" That's a question I get asked two or three times a day. Well, it's something I can't tell you. Adventures just sort of happen. You'll go along for years without having any trouble worth mentioning, and then, all of a sudden, you're right in the thick of things.

FLOYD GIBBONS

One thing to remember, though, adventure can pop up in places where you'd never expect it to. It can come from people and things that look like the most harmless people and things in the world.

Take, for instance, the case of MRS. EDGAR PETERSON, of GAINSBORO STREET, BOSTON—the strange story of "The Lady Downstairs."

It was in the Spring of [illegible] and the Petersons were living in Worcester. Their house was a two-family dwelling. The Petersons lived on the top floor. And one day a new family moved in on the floor below.

The new tenants—let's call them the Joneses—[illegible] Mrs. Jones was intelligent and friendly and [illegible] friendship [illegible]

One day Mrs. Peterson heard someone talking and laughing downstairs and said to herself that Mrs. Jones must have company. She didn't think any more of that until she saw Mrs. Jones the next day and then, when she mentioned it, Mrs. Jones looked sort of blank. "Why," she said, "I didn't have any company. I was alone all day."

[illegible]

Mrs. P[illegible] There was no one there but Mrs. Jones. [illegible] Mrs. Peterson asked [illegible]

[illegible] said Mrs. Jones. "Come on down and meet them."

The two women went down to the cellar. There was no one there [illegible]

She said: "Are these the same people you were talking to a few days ago?"

And Mrs. Jones replied: "Yes. There are always men in my cellar. But you must be very careful for they are not your friends. But I am, and you know I wouldn't hurt you for the world."

Mrs. Peterson knew then that her [illegible] had been right. Mrs. [illegible] She got back up [illegible] as fast as she could and [illegible] Mrs. Jones seemed pretty [illegible] the Petersons' [illegible] year-old daughter [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] breathed a sigh of relief. [illegible]

[illegible] she heard a [illegible] Mrs. Jones [illegible] WITH AN AXE [illegible]

The mad woman had come up the front stairs and through the front door, which was unlocked. Silently, she had crept up on her victim. "I knew you were in," she said. "You can't fool me."

And Mrs. Peterson felt her heart sink. "You'd have to be in the same position yourself," she says, "to realize how I felt. I couldn't take my eyes off that hatchet in her hand. I couldn't run away and leave my little daughter, helpless and at an insane woman's mercy. Nor could I pick her up and run with her, for with her heavy plaster cast on, she weighed almost more than I could lift.

"To say that I was frantic was putting it mildly. But my little girl was stricken speechless and I knew I was the one who had to remain calm. At that point I suddenly remembered something. Poor Mrs. Jones was a very religious woman when she was in her right mind, and at one time had been a singer in a church choir. I believe it was that thought—and that thought alone—that saved my little girl and myself from being hacked to death by the mad woman's hatchet.

[illegible]

"How I ever managed to get down those stairs with that heavy burden, God alone can tell," she says. "My heart was beating like a trip hammer and my knees were knocking together. When I reached the bottom I nearly collapsed. I screamed for help, and the neighbors came to my assistance. Poor Mrs. Jones was taken to an asylum."

Mrs. Peterson went to [illegible] Mrs. Jones at the asylum [illegible]

[illegible] says Mrs. Peterson [illegible] experience [illegible]

Now [illegible] and you too, Ma'am—I want to see YOUR true adventure [illegible]

Floyd Gibbons will pay good money for good TRUE adventure stories. Hundreds of people in Boston and nearby towns have received ten-dollar and hundred-dollar bills for their yarns, and there's no reason why you can't do the same, for, as Floyd says, everybody has had at least one adventure. Mrs. Florence Abbott of Beverly won one hundred and ten dollars for the story of her life's biggest moment, and you can do the same. For further details, see the box at the right side of the page.

LEWIS HANEY ON UNEMPLOYMENT

CENSUS OF JOBLESS END OF INFLATION

URGENT U. S. NEEDS

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Nov. 19—The subject of unemployment keeps coming up. One day the President announces prosperity is here. The next day he discusses the large amount of unemployment and "relief."

In 1929 we talked about "profitless prosperity." In 1936 we are talking about jobless prosperity.

Why is this?

Evidently the Roosevelt administration has not found the cause of unemployment. (Or, if it has, it has not sought to remove that cause.)

One reason is the fact they refuse to find out exactly how many unemployed there are, and the circumstances surrounding these unemployed.

It is so obvious and elementary that before you can solve a problem you must know as exactly as possible what the problem is, that we may suspect some ulterior motives when the would-be solver does not seek the facts.

Yet the President has made no census all these years. And now he announces he is inclined toward a mere requirement that those who want government relief, register that fact!

Why don't the politicians want a definite count and appraisal of the unemployed, so that we can know who they are, where they are, why they are still unemployed, and what they can do?

My guess is that, in the first place, they want to keep this "unemployment relief" racket as a national affair. They want to keep the spending of the relief funds in the hands of the federal political machine.

If it were revealed to all that real employment is concentrated in certain states, it might become apparent that it is a local problem.

Thus Mr. Hopkins has just stated emphatically that unemployment and relief are "national problems." He says:

> "The federal government has no intention of turning the needy back on cities and counties, and it has no intention of liquidating its work program."

This statement was greeted with loud applause from certain mayors of cities.

Again, I believe that the federal politicians want to keep up the volume of spending and patronage which goes along with the Works Progress Administration program and government relief.

If they were to find out their own policies are largely responsible for the problem, they would not like it.

Thus, it is easy to understand why they resort to the old game of passing the buck.

The President urges business men to employ more laborers and suggests maybe they might kindly favor the unskilled and the older persons.

Mr. Hopkins urges business men to employ more laborers and suggests they reduce the hours of work per week, so that they can make room for more men.

But these old proposals get us nowhere. They do not touch the causes of unemployment. They merely enable the politicians to say to their unthinking followers:

> "We told business men to make room for the unemployed; but they wouldn't do it, so we must take care of them."

Business does not and cannot exist for the sake of giving "relief." It does not and cannot exist for the sake of giving employment.

Business exists for the sake of making products that we want enough to pay for and doing the job so cheaply that a profit is earned thereby.

If, therefore, business expenses are raised, either profits are directly destroyed, or prices are raised so that we all suffer as consumers. What we need is:

1—A careful census and study of number, location, characteristics, and causes of unemployment. We first need the facts.

2—An end to inflation, so that saving and investment may restore a sustained activity to capital and enterprise in the heavy industries of all sorts, thus making more productive employment.

This will never come until the government stops wasting our credit and balances our public budget.

Make it profitable to employ labor and millions of business men will bid for labor.

Business NEWS IS Favorable

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The daily reports on New England business that come to the desks of financial and business editors are so favorable that it is really not amiss to call them inspiring.

All industries located in this area are apparently participating in recovery and judged solely on the manner in which new business is developing we should say that even further gains will be scored.

Factories in all sections that have been shut down for years are now being eyed by expanding business. Every day brings news of a sale or lease promising employment and renewed activity for some community. And financial and banking interests are playing their part in the generation of good news. Loans by co-operative banks in Massachusetts passed the $5,000,000 mark in October, wiping out all previous records since the boom of the late 20's. Almost the entire amount was used for buying, building and improving homes.

The improvement in construction in the New England section is particularly noteworthy, in our opinion. For it is the one important component of recovery that has been lacking. In the Boston area alone excellent gains were registered during October. According to F. W. Dodge contracts for the month exceeded those of last year by $1,000,000. The total, and it is for actual construction contracts and does not include permits, was $5,316,000. A comparison with the 37 states east of the Rockies reveals that from January through October this city showed a gain of 65 per cent against 63 per cent.

Notebook: It is small wonder that important interests are reported as consistently bullish on building and construction stocks . . . And the average investor can do a lot worse than go along with them . . . When, as and if the next correction of the intermediate uptrend develops we suggest strong accumulation of issues in the group . . . Conversion of bonds into common stock in instances where a call is likely has the statisticians worried . . . For it means a larger number of common shares are outstanding and their earnings estimates must be refigured.

The stock market is proving to be every bit as erratic and jumpy as forecast here early this week. It is decidedly not the time for the average investor to increase commitments. And it does impress us as a likely time to make switches and do some liquidating in order to increase cash holdings. Oils, aviations and utilities continue to be favored here while attention is again called to what appears to be distribution in other directions. The next rally will be used by this writer to advise sales in sufficient volume to reduce participation in the market to a 50 per cent basis.

Odds and Ends: The writer would like to make an opportunity here to thank those who have so kindly wished him well in the two lecture courses on investment he is conducting for the state Department of Education . . . It is heartening, indeed, to know that so many friends have interested themselves in our efforts . . . Phillips Petroleum will have had one of the best years in recent history when the books for 1936 are finally closed . . . But this is regarded as just a start by its boosters . . . Some observers are of the opinion the business lost to railroads by bus operators is gone forever unless the latter make sharp cuts in fares.

BEET SUGAR Deliveries

Beet sugar deliveries in the United States during October, partly estimated, totaled 1,963,918 bags, against 2,436,249 bags in October, 1935, according to United States Beet Sugar Association, a decrease of 472,331 bags, or 19.39 per cent.

Ten months' deliveries totaled 19,900,520 bags, against 22,569,891 in like 1935 period, a decrease of 2,659,071 bags, or 11.83 per cent.

Loser

Wall Street Envious

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Wall Street men, always eager to take a loss on securities as income taxes draw near, eyed wistfully today a loss of $9991 on a $10,000 block of bonds.

The securities, which fell at $6 under the auctioneers' hammer, were Confederate States of America 8 per cent bonds, due July 1, 1868.

STOCK MARKET

Prices TURN Mixed

New York, Nov. 19—Leading issues tripped over selling bumps in today's stock market while a smattering of specialties managed to surmount handicaps for substantial gains.

Good business news continued plentiful, but brokers said the dividend bloom apparently had worn a bit thin with their customers, many of whom either discarded commitments or switched positions.

Quiet dealings were the rule both on the up and down movements and near the fourth hour trends were decidedly uneven.

Bonds and commodities were mixed. Foreign currencies were higher in terms of the dollar.

Among the few advances of 1 to 3 points were those of Philip Morris, Guantanamo Sugar preferred, Holly Sugar, Curtis Publishing, National Biscuit, Cerro de Pasco, Eason Oil and Shell Union Oil.

In the losing class for fractions to 2 or so were Chrysler, ex dividend; J. I. Case, International Harvester, Deere, Montgomery Ward, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, American Can, Kennecott, Loew's, Union Pacific and Santa Fe.

Resistant were Bethlehem, Curtiss-Wright, Boeing, United Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Western Union, Columbia Gas, General Electric, Murray Corp., Cuban-American Sugar, Douglas Aircraft, Schenley and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. In a restricted groove were Consolidated Edison, American Telephone, North American, N. Y. Central, Radio and Socony Vacuum.

The mining group, as a whole lagged as bar silver in London and the export metal in New York were lowered about ¼ of a cent an ounce.

Sentiment was a bit mixed in the boardrooms before the start of trading, although the continued flow of cheering business news was a sustaining influence.

With public spending power expanding briskly, merchants were said to be lining up their forces for the largest selling campaign since the depression.

Holders of merchandising issues noted the prediction of Secretary Roper that holiday department store sales probably would run over $920,000,000, or only 10 per cent less than in 1929.

The spread of cash throughout the nation was reflected in the figures of Dun & Bradstreet disclosing bank clearings for the latest week were the highest since October, 8, 1931, an increase of 32 per cent over the corresponding 1935 period.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions the French franc was up .00⅛ of a cent at 4.65⅛ cents, and sterling was 1-16 of a cent improved at $4.89.

LAUD Activities of FHA

BUILDING MEN COME FORWARD

By B. C. FORBES

One reader, recently quoted here, declared that the local Federal Housing Administration official, "almost insisted that I apply for $6000 and the government approved a $6000 application," notwithstanding that he applied for a substantially smaller mortgage, and notwithstanding that "my house today would not bring more than $6500 at the most."

Among various questions asked in this column were: "Is lending by the FHA proving a genuine blessing to home owners? Are its interest charges actually as low as commonly understood by borrowers?"

Champions come forward to espouse the meritoriousness of the FHA's activities — although the question concerning the actual interest charge is evaded.

One executive interested in the building industry writes, in part:

"I have been very closely in touch with the working of the Federal Housing Administration since its inception and I am frank to say that it is the one outstanding accomplishment of the present administration which has won my admiration and respect; the one department being conducted on a sound and businesslike basis with a minimum of political interference.

"As an executive of an industry and an association dependent upon construction activities, I have fortunately been in a position to follow developments of FHA activities very closely. I know they were instigated to revive a building industry which was dormant—if not almost dead.

"The customary sources of moneys for construction purposes had ceased to function. Millions of craftsmen were idle. Industries dependent upon construction were on the verge of disaster—involving the potential of more unemployment and adding further to the chaotic conditions which existed.

"Through the FHA activities, the administration was able to revive the industry and put it back on its feet. It gave encouragement to banks and insurance companies, which caused them to re-enter the field with a renewed confidence. The result is too obvious for anyone to question.

"As to the soundness of the Federal Housing Plan and program, I have talked to any number of bankers who now consider their mortgage investments far safer than ever before in mortgage history. Few, if any, offer any criticism of FHA valuations or the extent to which loans are made."

Three Parleys

INDUSTRY MEETS TO ADOPT PRINCIPLES

ECONOMISTS PLANS CITED

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Universal Service

Prior to the meeting of the seventy-fifth Congress in January, three important non-political conventions will be held to formulate the programme of business to meet the popular mandate for improving the material well-being of the people.

The first and perhaps most important of this trio of convocations will be known as the Congress of American Industry, which will be held in New York, Dec. 9 and 10, under the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers.

A keynote of this session will be an attempt to show how organized business, through alliance with science and invention, contributes to the raising of American standards of living.

Believing that the emergency phases of unemployment are over and that genuine unemployment is below 5,000,000, the association, expecting further recovery in 1937, points out in a current bulletin:

"There can be no misunderstanding of industry's desire to co-operate in complete recovery and the fullest possible re-employment. At few times in the past has it been more necessary for industry to speak calmly and constructively to the end that the best interests of all individuals in America may be better served, and we are fully confident that from this coming Congress of Industry will come one of the most progressive and constructive statements of principles ever to be adopted by American business men."

I. B. A. CONVENTION

Immediately preceding this Congress of Industry, the Investment Bankers Association of America, representing the principal creators and distributors of new security issues, will hold their 25th annual convention at Augusta, Ga., Dec. 2 to 6. Out of this meeting will doubtless come an appraisal of Federal credit and also of the national and local spending and taxation programs. Contrary to the usual timing of such conventions, the association deliberately postponed the meeting until after the election. The chief of the Federal officials to participate will be James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The third major meeting will be the convention of the American Economic Association at Chicago, Dec. 28 to 30. This will be a meeting of the nation's scientific economists, representing a variety of viewpoints. Not only will a non-partisan evaluation of Governmental policies be attempted, but in addition, new ideas, not yet adopted by public officials, will be launched. Internationalism, public credit, unemployment, distribution of wealth and monetary questions will be stressed.

ELECTION OUTCOME

The election outcome led to some apprehension in corporation and financial circles, and is likely to promote a healthy interest in research and in fact-finding.

Realists among the leaders are eager to make sure that they are fighting for sound and constructive objectives, not for old prejudices and outworn theories. Accordingly, there is growing interest in national bookkeeping, designed to gather data for formulating forward looking policies.

Men who are seeking to deal with actualities, rather than theories and phrases, are not concerned with looking to the right or to the left, but with developing a scientific attitude to the problems growing out of the public aspects of business. Instead of seeking to buck the trend, the wiser heads are searching for ways and means of complying with the popular will for improved material well-being. They believe that the secret to progress lies in improvement of equipment and machinery, and an eternal fight against economic waste. Their goal is to enable the worker to turn out more and better goods per hour of gainful employment.

Curiously enough, the agitation for better hours and better wages is not directed primarily against the large employers, who for the most part have a superior record. Charges, by and large, would pinch their small competitors more than them. The chief apprehension of the better large employers is over possible loss of their freedom.

Telephone Pioneers Silver Jubilee Celebration

More than 1400 men and women who have served the telephone for a score of years or more will meet at the Hotel Somerset and the Copley-Plaza tonight to join in an international celebration of the silver jubilee of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

This organization, which has more than 30,000 members in the United States and Canada, was founded in Boston, Nov. 2, 1911, to preserve the tradition of the telephone industry and to hold together by the ties of comradeship the people who have assisted in building it.

A wired hookup will unite all the pioneers in North America in a vast gathering. An international program and a New England program will be brought to Boston by telephone and will be broadcast through loud speakers after the silver jubilee banquet.

FIRST NATIONAL Stores Earnings

First National Stores, Inc., reports for the quarter ended September 26, 1936, net profit after depreciation and federal normal tax, but before surtax on undistributed profits, of $943,757, equal after preferred dividend requirements, to $1.10 a share on the 816,567 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with earnings in the same quarter a year ago of 93 cents a share.

URGE New Taxation METHOD

PRESENT ONE DISPUTED

New Orleans, Nov. 19 (AP) — Realtors urged here today that property be taxed according to the revenue it makes for the owner.

A formal report was presented by Ivan Thorson of Los Angeles for the committee on real estate taxation of the National Association of real estate boards.

He said the present method of taxation caused many owners to tear down buildings to lower assessments and many others to default in their tax payments.

Taxing agencies, he said, now base assessments on the price paid for property, improvements and other factors instead of upon the revenue it produces.

"The United States and Canada are the only civilized nations in which taxes are not based on income or productivity," he said.

Vincent P. Bradley of Trenton, N. J., said there was never more opportunity for "trained realtors and their staffs to produce well-paying management business than now."

He said this was so because there is so much real estate "available everywhere, with millions more of parcels on the way that must be managed by competent people."

Ayers J. duMois of the Federal Housing Administration said that government agencies in recent years had appraised more than 1,000,000 parcels of real estate.

As a result, he asserted, the public has become "appraisal minded." He said millions of Americans would "not soon forget that dishonest appraisals have been partly responsible for the hardships and property losses visited upon them during the years of the great depression."

Argentine 41-2s Offered Here

A banking syndicate headed by Morgan Stanley & Co., Inc., today offers $23,500,000 Argentine Republic external conversion loan 4½s, 1971, at 92½, to yield 4.953 per cent.

This is the first South American Government to come into American market for refunding since the pre-depression financing.

The issue was registered with the Securities & Exchange Commission at Washington.

The net proceeds of the sale to be received by the government are to be applied toward the retirement of the $23,596,000 Argentine external 6s, 1958.

The new securities, as the old, are payable in American dollars, since most of the issue is being offered in the United States.

The underwriters may offer not more than $5,000,000 of the bonds to certain banks or bankers in England at the same offering price, less a concession of 1½ per cent.

KANE'S TO HOLD HUGE SALE

Predicting that the coming year will be one of the most brisk in New England's history from a business point of view, Kane Furniture Company executives today had announced plans for a gigantic sale to celebrate one of the most prosperous seasons the company has ever had.

At a company celebration dinner held last night at the Hotel Kenmore, Harry Kane, president of the company, announced details of the semi-annual "Kane days," sales at which the store's already low prices, made possible by mass buying, are cut even more. Kane said at the next sale tomorrow and Saturday the company would offer more than a million dollars worth of furniture at bargain prices. The company president said:

"I am grateful to all New England for the support that has made it possible for this organization to break all previous sales records. The fact that we have shown an increase of more than 27 per cent this year is proof to me that New England knows its values and appreciates the savings made possible by our 15-store buying power.

"As a token of our gratitude we are staging our famous Kane Days sales on Friday and Saturday and are expressing our gratitude with the greatest savings it is possible for us to effect."

A NEEDED REFORM

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has a fine opportunity to humanize the effort to attain economy in the expenditures of the Federal government.

Economy means far more than merely balancing income against outgo. IT INVOLVES GETTING FULL VALUE FOR EVERY DOLLAR SPENT BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

Since most of the Federal outlays ultimately go for human service, the problem centers around picking the right person for every job.

This is the essence of the merit system in government.

With partisan squabbles adjourned, it is fortunate that both of the two major parties are pledged to Civil Service reform.

The party in power promised in the Democratic platform for 1936 to substitute efficiency for the spoils system in picking public servants.

"For the protection of government itself and promotion of its efficiency," the Democratic platform said, "we pledge the immediate extension of the merit system through the classified Civil Service . . . To all non-policy making positions in the Federal service.

"We shall subject to the Civil Service law all continuing positions which, because of the emergency, have been exempt from its operation."

THAT these are not to be mere empty words was suggested by the President's recent conference at the White House with the Civil Service Commission.

At this meeting, the Chief Executive took preliminary steps aimed at placing under the merit system employes of temporary agencies which will become part of the permanent establishment.

This ruling would affect 300,000 persons.

New legislation would doubtless be involved to carry out this objective.

It is a logical sequence to Mr. Roosevelt's welcome announcement on July 22 last that all first, second and third class postmasters—13,700 in all—will henceforth be subject to Civil Service regulations.

Six weeks later the President extended this move, ordering the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to begin immediately the application of merit requirements to future personnel for itself, the Home Loan Owners' Corporation and its other subsidiaries.

These gestures have filled the public with high hopes of solid progress in this direction.

IN THE haste of creating emergency commissions and bureaus, the Administration temporarily turned away from the merit system.

Accordingly it was severely criticised by its adversaries.

It cannot long continue the government by the unfit without defeating its own high expectations for permanent national progress.

In pointing to appointments without examination as to the fitness of applicants, Lawrence Sullivan, in the Atlantic Monthly, declared:

"The march of merit was unbroken for half a century. But by the end of the fiscal year 1935 the percentage of competitive places had slipped back to 57 (as compared with 80.8 in the preceding Administration), approximately the ratio which prevailed in the period 1906-1908."

By carrying out its pledge to re-establish and extend the merit system, the Roosevelt Administration can go a long way toward redeeming the faith which the majority of voters has expressed in it.

It is a matter which transcends party lines and involves the character and capacity to govern of the nation's leadership.

Machines and Jobs

THE AMERICAN automobile industry offers refutation of the theory that the machine age imperils the security of labor.

William J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company reveals that the building of an automobile today requires the labor of more men than the same job required seven years ago.

Specifically, it takes the services of 98 men to put out an automobile in 1936, whereas 74 men did the job in 1929.

The reason, according to Mr. Cameron, is:

"The new cars take more fitting, more finishing, more time and better work in every way because they are better cars."

At the same time these better cars, offered at better prices, are giving the buyers MORE VALUE FOR THEIR MONEY than ever before.

There is no reason to doubt that this experience will be duplicated throughout the employing industries of the nation.

Belief that machines will eventually do all work, and that production by human hands and brains will dwindle accordingly, is the refuge of the hopeless and the helpless.

History has proved, and will prove again, that inventive genius provides work for men to do. The menace of technological unemployment has been vastly exaggerated, as the automobile industry so effectively proves.

It is a matter of industrial history that more efficient production opens up new job sources.

It has done that in all periods of industrial history in America.

And it will continue to do it.

Mme. Schumann-Heink

MME. ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK, dead at 75, was one of the world's most beloved women.

For more than two generations the world acclaimed her rich contralto voice and hailed her as one of the greatest of living artists.

But Mme. Schumann-Heink's real happiness was found not in the courts of kings or in the salons of the rich, but in the presence of her family. Motherhood was her greatest role.

Like all mothers, she knew suffering and heartache. In the World War she had sons fighting on both sides. Two were killed.

Yet always she preserved a firm and steadfast loyalty to America, the land of her adoption. "I love this wonderful country," she often said, "better than I ever loved my homeland."

Hating war deeply and sincerely as all who have tasted its bitterness must hate it, Mme. Schumann-Heink devoted her last years and much of her fortune to the former soldiers.

It was in recognition of this work that the American Legion made her an honorary officer and called her "Mother."

Probably the happiest moment in all her life was the one when she received news that her birthday had been selected by Congress as the date for payment of the Bonus. She considered it a personal tribute.

Mme. Schumann-Heink is gone, her voice silenced forever. But her memory will live. The truly great do not die. They find an immortality in the hearts of those that knew and loved them.

Shop Early and Mail Early

BOSTON postal authorities again make their plaintive plea:

"Please mail your Christmas packages early."

That isn't much to ask and the one way to be in a position to grant it is:

"Do your Christmas shopping early."

Doing both will help to relieve the strain on harassed postmen and store clerks awaiting the last-minute deluge.

They are entitled to a Christmas Day not spoiled by "nerves" and fatigue.

Help to give it to them.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

If you're a bewildered modern—caught in the cruel trap of your own skepticism—there's a story for you in the November issue of Harper's Magazine by Bernice Kenyon, called "The Doll."

Elsie Robinson

Eleven-year-old Sue is the daughter of a great scientist. Her mother died at Sue's birth. Distraught, her father locked himself and his child within the cold cell of science . . . told himself that there was nothing greater than that cell, no mysteries or miracles which the human mind could not answer.

So the child grew, sharing the arid faith of her father. At the age when other little girls were "playing house," she had a microscope in which her father, daily, set fresh slides. Through the powerful lens she studied the intricate yet ordered pattern of living cells . . . believed that human existence fell into just such precise patterns . . . that all experience could be solved by scientific formulas.

"There's nothing," said her father, "that we cannot find out if we're given the time."

A NEW LIFE!

Then came the awakening. They have gone to an isolated village, high above Lake Como, to study Alpine plants. One day the cook—amiable, devout old Gelsomina—takes the child into a church. While Gelsomina prays, Sue wanders about. She has never been in a church before—knows nothing of that vast bewilderment to which the church ministers.

Wide-eyed, she surveys the cluttered symbols of a need and an answer to which she has no key . . . "tarnished ornaments that flashed with dusty jewels . . . tinsel and paper flowers strung into faded garlands . . ." contrasts this sentimental confusion with her father's scientific precision.

What was it all about? Why did people do things like this? What did they expect to find? For the first time the child senses life's dark mystery and insecurity . . . trembles before it . . .

Then suddenly she comes upon a "Doll" . . . a tall, lovely Doll set in a niche, candle light flickering upon her serene, understanding face . . . upon her tragic, empty hands. Sue puzzles over this doll. Why should there be a doll in a church? Her father hates dolls. There was a painful scene when Sue's governess tried to give her one.

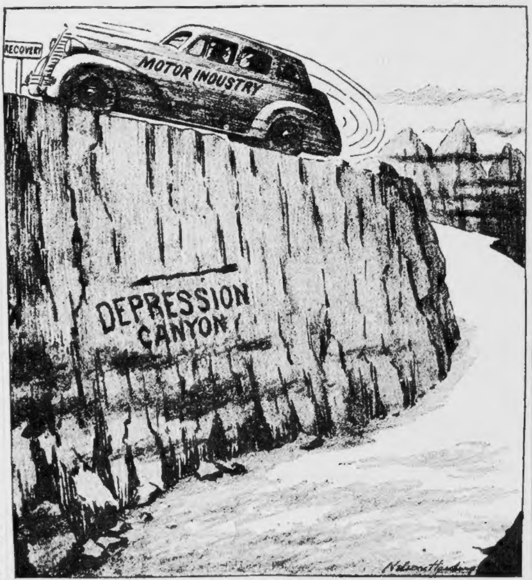
ONLY FAITH MATTERS

Sue did not understand that scene . . . could not realize what agonies of remembrance were aroused by that baby image in a woman's arms. For Sue had been as shielded from death as from life. Death was only a natural ending. There was nothing beyond it. One did not fight against it . . . did not even think about it. One simply accepted it as all scientific facts were accepted. She does not yet know that there are dreadful clamors which science cannot answer—hurts which science cannot heal.

She does not know. But, facing the compassion of this lovely, gentle face, the motherless child is strangely stirred. She can hardly tear her eyes from that face . . . she will never tear it from her heart. Dimly she begins to feel that truth which we all must grasp before we can find peace—that life is greater than man's feeble comprehension . . . beyond the management of man's little will.

No matter how we try, we cannot always find the answers. With all our wisdom and power, sooner or later we must come to the place where facts fail us—where only faith can carry or comfort us.

The Hill Climber -:- -:- By Nelson Harding



On and up the long, steep ascent
With its windings and its turnings
On the dangerous and narrow
Track along the precipices

Goes that sturdy automobile
With its mighty driving power,
Shows the way up from the bottom
Of the canyon of Depression.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Nov. 19—Gypsy Rose Lee, ex-queen of burlesque, continues her slink through the Park avenue drawing rooms. There are not many celebrity gatherings that do not angle for her, and in every instance to those who had not seen her, she proved a surprise package.

O. O. McIntyre

Those who expected to find Miss Lee over-rouged, thickly veined with Rabelaisian repartee, discover instead a self-possessed lady with a cough drop voice and dress suit accent who might have run up from Bryn Mawr for a prom. She even scatters effortless French phrasing through her conversation.

She fits in perfectly with the Dear Noel motif and is vastly amused that people who have not met her are a mite astonished she is not something of a freak. The brassy blades who go in for squiring the sudden acquirers of Broadway fame are trying to give her the usual rush.

Miss Lee, who was graduated from burlesque to festoon a role at the Winter Garden, queens it in a pent house in the serene shadows of Gramercy. In burlesque she would wander an aisle and kiss some bald man on the forehead. She says the only difference now is $4.40 customers instead of 35 centers.

No dress adornment for the male accomplished the spiffiness in my opinion of the carefully selected and jauntily tied muffler. With it man expresses his barbaric flair for wild color without becoming a Harlem hotcha. England has long outdistanced the States in nifty mufflering.

Indeed, the steady use of the muffler dates back to the days when Jack Buchanan showed us the proper muffler "do"—the whorl—in Charlot's Revue. English actors such as Herbert Marshall, Leslie Howard and Ronald Coleman have also given it panache.

Artists are particularly effective muffler wearers. The late Ralph Barton, for instance. Ben Ali Haggin knows how to wear one like nobody's business. So do John Baragwanath and Howard Chandler Christy.

Mark Hellinger is probably the only newspaperman in the country with an armored car. The notation was made by Stanley Walker. Not that Hellinger is afraid of the mobster's gun. In fact his sentimental screeds have been known to make bad boys of the bullets break right down and cry in their night club champagne.

But he is young, ambitious and taking no chances with the fates. Twice he has somersaulted in his car. In this one he can somersault, go over a cliff and still roll merrily on.

One of the 34th street miracles of sprightliness these days is the morning arrival of Grover Whalen, new boss of the World's Fair, as he bowls to his offices in the Empire State building. Whalen is a sort of sartorial quickie to flash in the going-to-work crowds. There is always a blood red rose in his great coat lapel and he is barbered and massaged to blend with the sunrise. His mustache, too is something what-ho in careful streamlining. He is in himself a magnificent outside exhibit for what's going on in the main tent!

Some one tells me mystery and adventure writers do their dandiest work buried in some bleak outpost for the winter. Arthur Somers Roche wrote "Loot" and "A Scrap of Paper" on an icy sweep of the Maine coast—when food and finances were low. Herbert Asbury, Arthur J. Burks and Dashiell Hammett hibernate to log cabins in the Adirondacks, to loll before great fires, live on tinned fare and enjoy a whispering nexus with nature in violence.

Thingumbobs: The lawyer Richard Knight wears a 9½ sized hat . . . The favorite diversion of Walter Lippmann is croquet . . . Louis Armstrong, hot jazz trumpeter, has salvaged a $50,000 annuity out of the swing craze already . . . Fame: A steak is named for Steve Hannagan at the Stork Club . . . Daniel Frohman has been president of the Actors' Fund for 35 years.

Add vanishing ailments: There was a period—about voice changing time—in which sprigs indulged a sort of nervous twitching, expressed by twisting their necks in collars. Somehow or other it is never seen any more. When I fell victim I remember a neighbor asking Grandma if I might not be going into St. Vitus Dance. "Nothing of the sort," she snapped. "He's just got the jittys."

Isn't It So?

Marriages will fail if there is nothing to hold mates together except their personal attractions.

Debtors and creditors are seldom comfortable companions.

To grow old and not know it is to hide your age and keep smiling.

The Plodding Elephant

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

This year appears to have been a bad one for elephants, and this is said without any reference to political emblems. To anyone who like myself, never misses the circus or a periodic visit to the zoo, the elephant is a great fellow. When one has sat for hours listening to elephant men talking about their charges, he is bound to have acquired a lively and lasting interest in old Hathi, the wisest of all living things outside of man himself.

Edwin C. Hill

The other day, down in Beaumont, Texas, a young laborer forgot to talk to an elephant and paid for it with his life. He was a circus worker and had gone into the railroad car housing an elephant, Trilby by name, to put a collar on her. Startled by his approach, Trilby seized him with her trunk, flung him against the wall and stepped on him. The keeper's explanation of the act was this:

"Elephants sleep standing up in their cars. We had warned all workers to be sure and speak to the elephants before approaching them.

"This was necessary under the circumstances because an elephant must be awakened quietly and not terrified by sudden handling. In this case, Trilby was frightened and lashed out in her fear."

In half a dozen cases, an unusual number, of murders committed by elephants in the past few months, the most notable one happened in the San Francisco Zoo.

KILLED KEEPER

Wally, a 23-year-old bull, killed his keeper in a fit of rage. Wally had never before given any trouble, but the decree was that he be destroyed in order that no one else might be the victim of his temper.

The execution did not take place until Wally's cause was carried to the district Court of Appeals. Several animal lovers intervened and while they obtained a temporary stay of execution, Wally, in the end, faced a firing squad.

All in all, elephants seldom go wrong, which is a good thing for the peace and the health of the circus people and the communities which they visit.

Watching a file of elephants plodding along trunk by trunk in a parade, most of us must have wondered what would happen if one got it into his head to break away on a rampage. The town of Sodre Wooley, in Skagit County, Washington, and the surrounding countryside know what would happen because it happened there some ten years ago and is still talked about.

The elephant was Tusko, a tremendous beast with a mischievous turn of mind for a headliner in a small circus. On this particular Saturday night Tusko's keeper was ill, and the fireworks began when the substitute came to lead Tusko into the ring. Tusko picked up the substitute and threw him over the tent wall and against a show wagon 60 feet away. This done, Tusko headed for Main street.

A WISE ANIMAL

Two parked automobiles stood in his path, but Tusko was in no mood to go around anything. He lifted the first car and threw it through the front of a tobacco and candy store. He stamped the other car into the dust. For another two hours Tusko went along in high gear, venting his spleen on barns, filling stations and automobiles.

The circus people at last caught up with him as he stood at a crossroads, meek and gentle as you please. They had brought along two other elephants for the capture, which proved a simple matter. Tusko's spree was over. He fell into line without a murmur.

Naturalists like Hornady, Blair and Ditmars will tell you that the elephant is unmatched in initiative, caution and memory. He may seem a lumbering fellow, but, as Kipling well said, he can move as fast as a railway train when he has to.

Again, the phrase, "clumsy as an elephant," is a libel. No sane elephant does a clumsy or an unconsidered thing. Dr. Blair points out that elephants can be taught to make chalkmarks on a blackboard, actual figures and symbols.

And he gives some credence to the belief among elephant men that the great creatures can be taught even to express their own thoughts in fragmentary writing.

That's That -:- By Bruce Gustin

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics predicts the highest price for apples in several years. But the crop is the smallest since 1921. That is the way the farm business goes. When there is a bumper crop it isn't worth anything. And when prices are high, comparatively few of the producers have anything to sell.

You may have been surprised to read that a Coast Guard plane has been engaged in a search for bootleg whiskey stills in Ohio. Repeal of prohibition was supposed to put a stop to bootlegging. The theory was that with the legalization of the liquor business, those who wanted to engage in it would rather do that lawfully than run the risk of being fined or imprisoned for bootlegging. But repeal hasn't ended all bootlegging any more than prohibition wiped out other evils of the booze business.

According to a recent survey, the result of which is announced by Luther Gulick, director of the Institute of Public Administration, bootlegging still flourishes in the United States and high liquor taxes are largely responsible. The institute's investigators report that "the per capita consumption of tax paid spirits at the present time is only 29 per cent of what it was in 1914 and it is held by many persons that the difference is accounted for by bootlegging rather than by a decrease in consumption."

There is no doubt that high liquor taxes encourage bootlegging because they make illegal traffic in liquor profitable. But there is little chance of any material reduction in liquor taxes. Governmental agencies, both federal and state, are interested mainly in getting as much revenue as they can out of the liquor business. Not until they can be convinced that lower levies are likely to increase revenues are they likely to consider making any reduction in tax rates.

It used to be that the blame for every traffic mishap was put on the motorist. But it is becoming more and more apparent that careless walking is responsible for almost as many "accidents" as is careless driving. The Chicago Motor Club has concluded that the pedestrian who is struck by a motor vehicle generally is at fault. As a basis for this conclusion, it points to an eastern traffic survey which shows that 7000 of the 16,000 pedestrians killed last year were jaywalking and that 56 out of 100 pedestrians ignore traffic signals.

There can be no doubt that in night accidents, involving pedestrians, the pedestrian usually is to blame. He can see the headlights of an approaching vehicle, but in many instances the driver cannot see him in time to avoid striking him. Careful walking is just as important as careful driving in cutting the motor toll which is a disgrace to civilization.
